The American State Convention at Utica.

UTICA, N. Y., Tuesday, Sept. 20.

About one hundred and twenty persons are here this evening on attendance to the American Convention, including delegates from thirty Counties, but not all full.

Little opposition at present develops itself to the proposition for a divided ticket between the nominees already in the field.

The Hon. Erastus Brooks, the Hon. Lorenzo Burrowes, the Hon. Daniel Ullman, the Hon. Joel T. Headley, the Hon. George Briggs, Gen. Gustavus Adolphus Scroggs, Samuel J. Wilkin, James Kidd, Capt. James H. Toone, H. B. Northrup, and other prominent actors in the American organization, are here.

At present there is only a slight sprinkling of outsiders from the other parties in attendance.

Some slight talk is going on for a straight American ticket, and some for no ticket at all, but for a platform strongly condemning the "irrepressible conflict" doctrine. There is little prospect, however, of either making headway against the eclectic ticket. The chances at present favor the following candidates:

Judge of the Court of Appeals—HENRY E. DAVIES, Republican. Certain.

Secretary of State—E. W. LEAVENWORTH, Republican. Doubtful.

Comptroller—SANDFORD E. CHURCH, Democrat. Certain.

Attorney-General—CHARLES G. MYERS, Republican. Certain.

State Engineer—VAN R. RICHMOND, Democrat. Doubtful.

Treasurer—PHILIP DORSHEIMER, Republican, doubtful.

Canal Commissioner—WILLIAM S. SKINNER, Democrat, doubtful.

State Prison Inspector—DAVID P. FOREST, Republican, certain.

Clerk of the Court of Appeals—JOHN L. LEWIS, Democrat, pretty certain.

The nomination of Mr. CHURCH for Comptroller seems certain, in consequence of the anti-canal record of Mr. DENNISTON, the Republican nominee. So is that of Mr. MYERS for Attorney-General, the argument used against Mr. TREMAINE, the Democratic nominee, being his constant opposition to Americanism.

The other candidates may be varied somewhat from the above.

There is very little excitement apparent.

MASSACHUSETTS POLITICS.

Massachusetts Republican State Convention.

RENOMINATION OF ALL THE PRESENT STATE OFFICERS.

FITCHBURG, Mass., Tuesday, Sept. 20.

The Republican Convention for the nomination of State officers was held here to-day.

There was a large number of delegates and an apparent unity of opinion.

Ensign H. KELLOGG, of Pittsfield, was elected President, with Vice-Presidents representing all sections of the State.

The Committee on credentials reported 253 towns, represented by 1,237 delegates.

Mr. KELLOGG, on taking the Chair, addressed the Convention at considerable length. He laid down the party platform as in favor of a protective tariff, a reservation of the public lands in favor of actual settlers, the protection of every citizen, wherever he is or wherever he was born, and opposition to all filibustering and the African Slave-trade.

On the first ballot for Governor, Mr. BANKS received 627 out of 712 ballots cast. His nomination was then made unanimous.

ELIPHALET TRASK was nominated for reëlection as Lieut.-Governor, by 613 out of 619 ballots cast.

The nominations of OLIVER WARREN, as Secretary of State; MOSES TENNY, as State Treasurer; H. PHILLIPS, as Attorney-General; and CHARLES WHITE, as Auditor—all present incumbents—followed with great unanimity.

In the afternoon the Committee on Resolutions introduced a series, the first of which says, that the Republican Party originated in opposition to the slave power and is necessary for the preservation of State rights; the second and third resolutions denounce the present National Administration for extravagance in the expenses of the Government, for truckling to the slave power, for allowing the reopening of the African Slave-trade, and refusing protection to naturalized citizens. The fourth resolution contemplates an early assumption of the national power by the Republicans, and predicts for them a continued reign. The fifth and last resolution is devoted to State affairs, and highly compliments the present Government.

The resolves were unanimously passed.

About 800 delegates were present at the Convention, and everything passed on in harmony.

NATIONAL POLITICS.

Senator Douglas on Judge Black's Pamphlet.

In a speech delivered at Wooster, Ohio, on the 16th of September, Mr. DOUGLAS took up the reply to his recent article in Harper's Magazine, and discussed it as follows:

The pamphlet is anonymous, but the New-York Herald says it is by JERRY BLACK, the same who, last year, wrote letters to Illinois, advising Democrats to vote the Black Republican ticket. Whether he did write it or not he could not say, but the copy he had seen came to a friend under BLACK'S frank. He said he should not consider it worthy of a reply had it not contained infamous falsehoods, and aimed to strike down, by such means, a host of noble men, now leading the Democratic columns in the State Campaign under the banner of popular sovereignty.

Upon reading the last sentence of BLACK'S review "We are called upon to make a contest, at once unnecessary and hopeless, with the judicial authority of the nation. We object to it. We will not obey Mr. DOUGLAS when he commands us to assault the Supreme Court of the United States. We believe the Court to be right, and Mr. Douglas wrong."

And also the following: "In case he is elected President, he must see the laws faithfully executed. Does he think he can keep that oath by fighting the judiciary?"

Judge DOUGLAS said he invited all to read with the closest scrutiny the Harper article, of which this purports to be a 'review,' and to judge for themselves whether this above charge of assaulting the judiciary of the country was not an infamous falsehood. The author knew full well that it was an infamous falsehood! To vindicate that decision of the Supreme Court he had made his most effectual efforts. In over one hundred and thirty speeches in Illinois last year, he had every time and everywhere spoken in vindication of the opinion of the Court. He quoted that decision to prove that his devotion to the Democratic doctrine of Popular Sovereignty was Constitutional and well founded. The man who wrote that could not look him in the eye and repeat the assertion that the Harper article contained any occasion for such a charge.

He again read from BLACK'S article:

"He claims for the Territorial Governments the right of confiscating property on the ground that those Governments are sovereign—having uncontrollable and independent power over all their internal affairs."

"That, too, is false," said he. "I deny that I ever claimed either that a Territory could confiscate private property, or that those Governments are sovereign. It is doubly false. I deny that a State even can confiscate private property, except by due process of law. Besides, the writer could not but have known that I had not claimed the Territories to be sovereign Governments, because the very article he writes contains extracts from my letters and reports which distinctly declare the contrary doctrine, as follows in my letter to Philadelphia and my report of the Senate Committee on Territories:

"Under our territorial system it requires sovereign power to ordain and establish constitutions and governments. While a territory may and should enjoy all the rights of self-government, in obedience to its organic law, it IS NOT A SOVEREIGN POWER. The sovereignty of a Territory remains in abeyance, suspended in the United States, in trust for a people when they become a State, and cannot be withdrawn from the hands of trustees and vested in a people of a territory without the consent of Congress.

This Committee, in their reports, have always held that a Territory is not a Sovereign Power, that the sovereignty of a Territory is in abeyance, suspended in the United States, in trust for the people when they become a State; that the United States, as trustees, cannot be divested of the sovereignty, nor the Territory be invested with the right to assume and exercise it, without the consent of Congress. If the proposition be true, that sovereign power alone can institute Governments, and that the sovereignty of a Territory is in abeyance, suspended in the United States, in trust for the people when they become a State, and that the sovereignty cannot be divested from the hands of the trustee without the assent of Congress, it follows, as an inevitable consequence, that the Kansas Legislature did not and could not confer upon the Lecompton Convention the sovereign power of ordaining a Constitution for the people of Kansas, in place of the organic act passed by Congress."

He continued: "I am sorry of the necessity of alluding to the article, and the infamous falsehoods it contains, and would not do so if it was not, while aimed at me, intended to strike at the great Democratic principles, which the gallant standard bearers of the Democracy of the West—our noble RANNEY, DODGE of Iowa, HOBART of Wisconsin, and BECKER of Minnesota—are bearing so fearlessly at the head of their Democratic hosts. The attempt, however, to defeat the success of this great doctrine must fail. If New Mexico knocks at the door of Congress with a Slavery Code as the choice of her people, and Kansas without, no power without their territory shall prevent their having the institutions they have decided upon as best for their own welfare and prosperity.

Douglas in Wisconsin.

JANESVILLE, Wis., Sunday, Sept. 11, 1859.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Your neighbor of the Herald, in a paragraph noticing the late Democratic State Convention in Wisconsin, has it that Senator DOUGLAS had a wet blanket thrown over him by that body, and gives in proof of that statement the fact that the Convention refused to elect delegates to the Charleston Convention, but postponed such election until February, 1860.

Now every one here in Wisconsin knows the fact to be that, with the exception of a very few Postmasters and other Federal office-holders, the Convention was composed of Democrats who are devoted friends of Mr. DOUGLAS—who prefer him as a candidate for the Presidency to any other Democrat, North, South, East or West—who believe that with him as the leader of the Democratic host in 1860, the Republican Party will be utterly routed, and the "irrepressible conflict" doctrine of SEWARD and his followers will cease to be the war-cry of that political organization.

The election of delegates to the Charleston Convention was postponed until the 22d of February, because there was a general conviction that the party throughout the State would be better satisfied to have them elected then, than ten months before the assembling of the body to which they would be returned—that an election then would have more weight and influence because it would be made after every possible issue affecting candidates or parties had been brought before the people, and when there could be no misunderstanding the preference of the Democrats of Wisconsin. Mr. DOUGLAS may change his position—may forfeit the confidence and respect of those who now rely upon his sagacity and firmness, but the members of our State Convention, and ninety-nine hundredths of the voters whom they represented, have no fear of any such result. On the day appointed, next Winter, the same body, or another to be elected in its place will elect the National delegates, and these will go to Charleston to vote for the nomination of STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS, and will continue to vote for him as long as there is a shadow of a chance for making him the candidate. They will go, however, without being bound by any instructions of the body electing them, just as delegates from Wisconsin have always gone to the National Conventions of the party. In 1856 our men voted for the nomination of Mr. BUCHANAN, but from the suggestions of policy, not because they had any strong regard for him. They thought he would be a good candidate on the score of availibility. In 1860 our delegates will vote for STEPHEN A. DOUGLAS because they love the man, believe in his doctrines, and are confident that he can be elected by a triumphant majority, and you may be assured that no man who thinks or feels otherwise can be elected to go to Charleston from this State. Senator Toombs on the Question of Slavery in the Territories.

The Augusta Dispatch gives the following synopsis of a speech recently made by Senator TOOMBS, at Augusta, Georgia, upon the political topics of the day:

The question of Slavery, Senator TOOMBS contended, had "been settled," and nothing now could be made of it. That at the time of the Confederation all parties looked to a division into Slave and Non-Slaveholding States; then it did not enter into national politics, and was not considered a question for Federal legislation; but after the Consitution was formed, it became necessary to legislate. It was determined to be the duty of Non-Slaveholding States to give up fugitives. That was settled. They determined upon the per capita principle of representation. That was settled. As to the question of the African Slave-trade, all the States, except Georgia and South Carolina, were opposed to it; they agreed upon the existing laws, and the trade was prohibited in every State. That was stlled. The American Congress had full and ample power to control it.

The Constitution was silent as to what should be the condition of new acquisitions of territory, and out of this silence all the trouble had grown. The northwest territory had been ceded by Virginia, with a section prohibiting slavery north of the Ohio. Tennessee, Alabama and Mississippi did not contain the prohibitory section placed over the Northwest. Louisiana and Florida, it was then seen, would fall into our hands just as naturally as it is now seen that Cuba and the islands of the Caribbean will. The principle that the South is entitled to an equal participation in the territory acquired by the common blood and treasure will triumph, if we maintain it. It was opposed by KING and the New-England politicians. In the admission of Missouri, a false and degrading discrimination against this right was assented to by a large Southern majority in Congress. Then came the acquisition of Texas by treaty with her as an independent Government.

The territory acquired from Mexico next came up for adjustment, and the unanimous vote of the South was cast to extend the Missouri line to the Pacific. But in all these acquisitions the principle was not settled as to the power of the Territories over the subject of Slavery, while in a Territorial condition. In 1846 there were but four men in Congress, Democratic or Whig, who did not hold to Congressional prohibition. This ground was abandoned in the settlement of the territory acquired from Mexico, and California decided this question for herself. Utah had been settled by the Mormons, who had adopted—in the language of a distinguished Free-soiler—"the twin abominations of polygamy and Slavery," and New-Mexico had adopted a Slave Code, protecting slave property, and it was as safe there as in Georgia.

In 1854 we overcame the prohibition existing against Slavery in Nebraska and Kansas by coercion, and the Democratic Party, with some exceptions, stood up to the repeal of the Missouri prohibition, and for this Northern Democrats had been denounced as slavery propagandists, and some of the Northern Democratic Senators had been stricken down from their manly fidelity to a great principle, in standing by the South on that question. The Democratic Party at the North is known at the North to be the ally of the South, and every man 21 years of age at the South knows it. A wayfaring man, though a fool, can understand it. Nearly as many Whigs as Democrats, in 1850, voted for the principle of non-intervention in the Compromise measures; but in 1854 few slave Northern Democrats stood by us, and they fell in the cause; and to-day we are told that the Democratic Party is demoralized. In the State of Ohio, with nearly 450,000 voters, there was a majority of only 20,000 against this principle, and 200,000 Ohio Democrats are to-night battling with you.

Whenever we come to a close place in this question, all the Opposition men South have to run into the lines of the Democratic Party. Yet Democrats are denounced, and at the South we find tuppenny politicians going through the State crying "squatter sovereignty." They may abuse it from the stump, but as members of the Georgia Legislature they voted for the resolution declaring that hostility to the principle of the Kansas bill on the subject of Slavery was hostility to the rights of the South; and in their party platform a few months later they avowed hostility to it rendered a man unfit to be a Know-Nothing—a curse too severe to be pronounced against a dog! But when FILLMORE pronounced the Kansas bill a Pandora's box, they changed their tactics, and repudiated all their indorsements of it.

In the formation of a Constitution in Kansas—though there is no doubt that a large majority did not want Slavery—a clause was adopted sanctioning it. In the Senate, pending the vote to admit Kansas under this Constitution, three Democrats—DOUGLAS, STEWART and BRODERICK—opposed it. In the House it was voted for by every Southern man but six Americans. Twenty Democrats also voted against it, and thirty-one Democrats voted for it. Had four of these six Southern Americans voted for the bill, it would have passed. And yet we are invited to look to the Opposition for a defence of the South. As well send to the priest to get extreme unction, as to send to that party for anything good. He explained and defended the English bill—it was identical with the Lecompton bill, except in its land clausc. He repudiated with indignation the supposition that any Southern member of Congress could be bought. We are told by the Opposition, and by some of the Democrats, that the Kansas bill contained Squatter Sovereignty. He regretted that his colleague, in the United States Senate, was of the number. DOUGLAS stood just where he was in 1848, 1850 and 1855. He (TOOMBS) had differed with CASS in his views of Squatter Sovereignty.

The principle of non-intervention had all departments of the Government in its favor; as for the future, he was willing to leave the question where it is, under the protection of the Constitution and the Courts. If Slavery is assailed, he would leave its protection to the Judiciary and Executive, and if we want legislative interference we can always have it.

This new demand for intervention was a device to break down the Democratic Party. While we have Executive, Judiciary and Congress, we are safe. He would not pass a single law upon the subject; he would drive no man from the Democratic Party who had fought Free-Soilers fifteen years. DOUGLAS was not his choice for the Presidency, but he would support him sooner than any Opposition man in the United States. DOUGLAS had been in error—but he is a bold, manly, truthful, independent patriot.

Political Items.

A complimentary dinner was given at Richmond, Va., on the 12th inst., by the Whigs of that County, to ROBERT RIDGWAY, Esq., editor of the Whig, and a full report of the proceedings is published in a subsequent number of that paper. The leading topic of all the speeches was naturally the able and vigorous service rendered by the Whig, to the alleged resuscitation of the Whig party in the State; but general political topics were incidentally discussed. Mr. RIDGWAY, in his speech, asserted that the whole Territorial question is permanently and irrevocably settled and disposed of, and there is now no real cause of strife existing between the North and the South; and he added, with more emphasis than charity and courtesy, that "he who asserts the contrary is, undeniably, either a knave or a fool." He thought it should be easy, therefore, to unite all the elements o opposition, in the coming election, against the Democrats; but if such a union is not effected, then he thinks the Whigs should run a candidate of their own, standing aloof from botlf the Democratic and the Republican parties, which are equally corrupt, equally sectional and equally unsafe. He had no fears of the dissolution of the Union, whether a Black Republican or an ultra Fire-eating Southerner should be elected; for the cohesive power of public plunder, he said would prevent either of them from breaking the peace or dissolving the Union; and besides, any man would prefer being President of thirty States to presiding over half that number. The other speeches and letters were in the same general vein.

It is pleasant to find now and then Southern ournals that learn something from experience. The New-Orleans Picayune, never rash and rabid upon the question of Slavery, is considering the tendencies of emigration. Hitherto the tide of settlement has been almost wholly to the Northwest:—but the Picayune says it is so no longer,—that various circumstances, among which are mentioned better climate, richer soil, and the discovery of gold, are turning the current southward, and that the main channel of the rushing stream is now to the south of Cincinnati. Naturally the inquiry arises: What effect this is to have upon Slavery. The Picayune thinks that the necessities of these new countries will render Slavery essential, and that the slaves already in the Union will be quite sufficient to supply the demand. It closes its article with this wise advice:

"Rashness without counsel at the South created a wild and, necessarily, a weak crusade for the possession of Kansas; let this not be repeated in other Territories. The laws of population, of emigration, of climate, of productions and of employments, will control the result without organized interference as stable communities or States."

WARREN AKIN, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Georgia, has written a letter in reply to inquiries, declaring that he will not vote for DOUGLAS even if he receives the Charleston nomination, because he considers his doctrine of squatter sovereignty worse than the Wilmot proviso. He also says that in his opinion it is the duty of Congress to legislate for the protection of Slavery in the Territories, whenever it may be necessary; and he adopts this as a part of his political creed, and pledges his influence to maintain this doctrine.

The Richmond Enquirer censures Judge BLACK for not having, in his reply to Judge DOUGLAS, followed his argument to its legitimate conclusion. He holds that slaves are property, and that no Territorial legislature can refuse to protect it; but he timidly refrains, according to the Enquirer, from adding the evident inference that in the event of such refusal it is the duty of Congress to interfere. It regards the letter of Judge BLACK as indicating the purpose of the President to return to the "ancient platform of the party."

Senator BROWN, of Mississippi, has published a letter in the Washington States denying the current rumor that he brought on the debate in the Senate, upon the doctrine that Congress was bound to protect Slave property in the territories, by arrangement with Senator DOUGLAS. He says he did not expect a reply from Judge DOUGLAS, and that his object in making the speech he did make on the subject was to ascertain the position of Northern Senators generally.

The Reform Movement in Baltimore.

MAYOR SWANN ATTRIBUTES BALTIMORE ROWDYISM TO THE PRESS.

The Baltimore Exchange publishes an elaborate correspondence which has just taken place between the Committee appointed at the Reform Meeting and Mayor SWANN. Some curious points occur in the letters. The Committee addressed a communication to the Mayor, dated Sept. 16, requesting his coöperation in the reform movement, calling his attention to the resolutions adopted by the citizens, and, while disclaiming any intention of dictating his course asking him to assist in preserving the purity of the ballot-box, by appointing honest judges of election and detailing special policemen to protect the polls on election-day. This letter is signed by THOMAS WOODWARD, Chairman of the Committee, and is a temperate document. Under date of Sept. 19, Mayor SWANN replies, somewhat curtly; declares that his personal and official reputation are alike involved in the issues presented by the Town Meeting; avows his willingness to hear the suggestions of any citizen, but refuses to recognize the Committee; declines to coöperate with that body, and insists that he has no right to divide the powers and responsibilities of his office with any class of citizens not representing the entire constituency from which he received his trust. Accompanying this reply, the Mayor publishes an "Address to the People of Baltimore," in which he assumes a broader gronnd, appeals to the citizens in self-vindication, and challenges proof of a single act which casts discredit upon him as a public officer. He admits that he may have erred and been misled, but declares that his career has been without a stain. The cause of the existing evils he attributes to the defective Criminal system, and urges the necessity of additional legislation. Mayor SWANN is especially indignant at the course of the Press; which, he says, has done more injury to the city than all its rowdyism. This passage of the address reads as follows:

"The partisan and quasi-neutral Press of your city has kept this community in a state of perpetual irritation. One issue has succeeded another in such quick succession that your periods of repose are now scarcely measured by those breathing spells, which even the most embittered combatant will sometimes resort to, as a preparation for renewed effort. The Executive of your city has been the object of systematic misrepresentation and abuse. At times when his arm should have been strengthened by the support of all classes and all parties, he has found his authority defied and his best intentions thwarted. Such has been the pertinacity with which this war has been persevered in, that even our most retired and conservative citizens have been induced to pause in the midst of so much persistent and angry crimination. To myself, personally, all this is of little consequence. Party rancor will invent expedients for successful warfare. But for the good name of the City of Baltimore, I cannot acknowledge the same indifference and unconcern.

I do not hesitate to say that the Press has done more injury to this city than ten times the catalogue of rowdyism which it has professed to detail. It has excited your people to riot and bloodshed at home, and has brought discredit upon your good name abroad. It has been the prolific source of many of the evils of which you complain, and if your trade has suffered, it has been through this agency, which, in its efforts to secure patronage or gain party ascendancy, has trifled with the best interests of your people. If you go to other communities, similarly situated with our own—with the same mixed population—you will find that rowdyism is not more remarkable in this city than in some of these. But their business men do not permit their evils to be made the constant theme of editorial comment and exaggeration. There is not a town or village in the whole country where the good name of your city is not now assailed, and the most fearful pictures presented of your 'deplorable' condition."

Senator Bigler and Pennsylvania Politics—Virginia Finances—United States Surveys—Indian Affairs.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Sept. 20.

Senator BIGLER is here consulting the President with reference to Pennsylvania politics. He denies that Senator DOUGLAS has any great strength in that State.

Dr. KIDWELL, of the Virginia Board of Public Works, arrived here this afternoon, and reports a great improvement in the finances of his State. At the present rate of taxation, he feels confident that the State will not only meet the interest on the public debt, but have a large surplus to add to the sinking fund, and to complete all improvements now in process of construction within ten years. [FROM THE REPORTER FOR THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Sept. 20.

Messrs. A. H. JONES and H. M. C. BROWN, who have been engaged as United States Surveyors for the last twenty years, have just arrived in Washington, having recently completed the survey of the boundary lines of the Choctaw and Chickasaw country—from the ninety-eighth to the one hundredth meridian, extending from Red River to the Canadian River—in a manner entirely satisfactory to the Government.

In 1855 a treaty was made with the Choctaws and Chickasaws, by which the former were to receive $600,000, and the latter $200,000, in consideration of a perpetual lease of territory from them, on which to locate the Wichitas, Camanches, and other wild tribes of Indians. The Camanches of the Texas Reserve have already reached there, together with the Wichitas, and other small tribes, who appear to be satisfied with their new homes.

The entire area of the Choctaw and Chickasaw country embraces twenty millions five hundred thousand acres, which, as to value, will bear a fair comparison with any Western territory. Out of this about eight millions of acres are now set apart for the location of those wild Indians.

Departure of Lieutenant-General Scott for the Pacific.

PARADE OF THE SCOTT LIFE GUARD—SALUTE OF THIRTY-THREE GUNS—SALVOS FROM THE FORTS IN THE BAY—A FEMALE PICKPOCKET.

Lieutenant-General WINFIELD SCOTT departed yesterday on his mission of pacification to the Pacific. The pier at the foot of Warren-street, North River, from which it had been announced that the General would sail in the Star of the West at 2 P. M., was crowded with people long before that hour, and every available spot on the adjacent wharves and shipping was occupied. The members of the Scott Life Guard, under the command of Capt. J. H. HOBART WARD, assembled at their armory early in the afternoon, and marched to the foot of Warren-street. They paraded in full uniform, and with side-arms only, prepared to do duty as artillerymen on this occasion. Commissary-General WELCH, for some reason, had refused to permit them to take a six-pounder belonging to the State, to use in firing a salute on this occasion, but they had hired a gun of similar calibre, and they stationed it at the end of the pier. At about 1½ o'clock the Policemen, who in large force and with admirable efficiency preserved order among the crowd, commenced to open a gangway through it, and announced that the General was coming. It was not without considerable difficulty that the large concourse, each member of which seemed endeavoring to press forward while the Police endeavored to press them back, was divided, and a pathway opened for the hero from the entrance to the pier to the steamer's side. When at length this was effected, Gen. SCOTT alighted from his carriage and advanced through the ranks of his friends, amid loud cheering and waving of hats and hands. When he had reached the gang-plank, he turned and bowed and waved his hand to the multitude, and then went aboard.

The Scott Life Guard was awaiting his arrival on board, and on the after-deck each member of the Company was in turn presented to him and wished him a prosperous voyage. We observed Street-Commissioner SMITH, Col. ABRAM DURYEA, (late of the Seventh Reginent,) Col. L. THOMAS, Assistant-Adjutant-General, and Col. G. W. LAY, Military Secretary—the two last named accompany Gen. SCOTT—and others conversing with the General just before the order for "All ashore what's going!" was given. When all who were not passengers had left the vessel, Gen. SCOTT ascended to the upper deck. His appearance there was greeted with loud cheers. He was dressed plainly in citizen's clothes, and carried a cane more for ornament than use apparently, for his upright carriage and hardy look said plainly that he needed no artificial support to rest upon.

After the moorings were cast off and while the steamer, which was crowded with passengers, was advancing slowly towards the middle of the river, the Scott Life Guard commenced firing a salute of thirty-three guns. The salute was returned from a small gun on board the Star of the West, while the cheering on the docks, and the waving of handkerchiefs, continued until some time after the steamer was headed towards the Narrows. From the Empire City, which was at her berth on the opposite side of the same pier, guns were fired, and as the steamer which bore the Commander-in-Chief passed down the Bay, she was saluted with guns, colors dipped and steam whistles, from steamers, ferry-boats and piers, and the artillery at Governor's Island, Fort Hamilton and Fort Columbus, took up the echo, and prolonged it far down towards the sea-line.

Of course pickpockets and thieves mingled plentifully with the crowd on the pier, which was largely composed of ladies. Detectives POOLE and ROACH arrested a well-dressed young woman named ELIZABETH WILLIAMS, just before the steamship Star of the West started, whom they had observed attempting to pick pockets in the crowd. The prisoner made several unsuccessful attempts, but finally managed to abstract the porte-monnaie of Mrs. KEZIAH SPEER, of Newark, N. J., which contained $26 in gold coin. ELIZABETH was taken before Justice Quackenbush, who committed her to prison in default of $1,000 bail.

Large Fire in Ann-street.

The alarm at about 12 o'clock last evening, was caused by the discovery of flames breaking out on the second floor of the four-story brick building No. 49 Ann-street, occupied by E. LIEBENROTH & VONAUW, blank-book mannfacturers. The fire was discovered by some of the members of Engine Company No. 5, whose engine is located next door to where the fire broke out, and the alarm was given. Owing to the large quantity of stock on this floor, and its combustible nature, the fire spread rapidly, and communicated to the other portions of the building, and although the firemen worked manfully, they were unable to subdue the fire until the three upper floors of No. 49 and the upper portion of No. 51 Ann-street were nearly burnt through. Messrs. LIEBENROTH & VONAUW occupied the whole of No. 49, and the fourth floor of No. 51, and their loss will probably amount to $20,000, said to be fully covered by insurance in City companies. Messrs. GODDARD & BALLARD, paper dealers, had a large quantity of paper stored in No. 51, which will probably prove a total loss. R. W. ROBY, card manufacturer, occupied the basement, and first and second floors of No. 51 Ann-street, and his stock is badly damaged by water. The total damage will not fall short of $30,000. The steam-engine belonging to Manhattan Company No. 8, rendered efficient service.

Conflagrations.

THE HALIFAX FIRE.—The loss by the recent fire at Halifax, N. S., is ascertained to have been $1,200,000. The insurances were as follows: Phenix of London, $140,000; Royal, of London, Alliance, of London, $112,000; Phenix, of $128,000; Liverpool, of London, $112,000; Phenix, of London, $32,000; American offices, $36,000; Halifax offices, $32,000; total, $480,000.

THE CHICAGO FIRE.—The following Eastern Insurance Companies held policies on the buildings recently burnt in Chicago: Phenix of Brooklyn, Hartford, Humboldt and New-York City of New-York, $5,000 each; Relief of New-York, $2,000; Montauk of Brooklyn, $3,000. The remainder of the insurances have not been ascertained.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—Mr. WM. BURGER, of Port Richmond, while driving from Quarantine to his residence, was thrown from his wagon and killed. He was an old resident Staten Islander, and proprietor of the Steamboat House at Port Richmond. Mr. JACOB VAN CLEEF, also an old resident on Staten Island, died suddenly at his residence at Quarantine, last night.

Official Invitation to the Free Blacks of the United States—Reforms Made by the New Government—Soulouque's Treasures, &c

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Sunday, Aug. 28, 1859.

The news at this time is not of great interest. The President recently returned from a visit to Petite Goave, and will presently set forth on a grand tour to the North. This movement is to consolidate the Government and extinguish the petty efforts that have been made, from time to time, by demagogues of the more ignorant class, to inaugurate a revolution against President GEFFRARD. Only three days ago a mulatto woman, an ex-mistress of the ex-emperor, was shipped, nolens volens, to Jamaica by the Government, for persisting in treasonable correspondence with SOULOUQUE. She was guarded by a company of soldiers to protect her against the fury of the populace, who, to the number of a thousand, at least, followed her to the wharf with cries of contempt and derision.

The celebrated soap-boxes taken from SOULOUQUE when he was sent away, have been opened in presence of the English, French, and Spanish Consuls. Instead of containing $950,000, as was reported at the time, they were found to have $209,133 72, Spanish, in gold, silver, and Haytien metallic currency.

The Government of GEFFRARD may now be considered as a permanent institution. It is popular with the great masses of the people—the country folks or habitans—who remember with horror the tyranny of the Emperor, and have no desire for further blood shed or misrule. The President addressed the National Guard last Sunday, and spoke freely of the conspiracies that had been formed against him. He said that he knew all the different conspirators, and would quietly await their time of action. He had no fear that they could succeed. As the colored class also is generally satisfied with this Government, there is no other part of the population out of which to create a revolution.

Since the Republic has been established, many great reforms have been inaugurated; although progress in the tropics has a very slow gait, as compared with progress in America. "Nous ne courrons pas dans ce pays ci;" is not less true of pedestrian locomotion than of social or political progress. But yet, knowing the obtacles,—many and great,—which obstruct every effort toward progress here, we can review with pleasure and hope the list of reforms inaugurated by the Government of GEFFRARD.

Let us briefly glance at the more prominent:

First of all, much has been done, in many ways, to conciliate the two Haytien castes, between whom, in past years, the prejudice has been as great, or greater than exists between the whites and blacks of the United States.

II. The army has been reduced from twenty-four thousand to ten thousand and odd. It was being rapidly still further reduced; but the Government was obliged to stop. Can you guess the reason? A few demagogues in the country industriously spread the rumor that GEFFRARD was preparing to sell the country to the whites! This was to excite the prejudices of the blacks against GEFFRARD, as being a colored man. Such an attempt would astonish you if you were to see the President and knew nothing of the nice distinctions that are drawn, with respect to color, in Hayti. With features nearly Caucasian, GEFFRARD would be accounted by every one at home a black; for he is neither in color nor even by blood, neither in fact nor in technical accuracy a mulatto. But, as ten thousand men have, in spite of the demagogues, been restored to the opportunity of working, while we may regret their action we can rejoice that it was not quite so effective as it was ridiculous.

III. Education has received a new impetus. Several new schools have been established in Port-au-Prince and in the surrounding country, and are in course of establishment in the seaports around the coasts. As soon as teachers can be had, and the necessary means can be provided, free schools will be established in every commune of the republic, and education, I am told, will be made, as in Prussia, compulsory. Without such a law, rigidly enforced, the establishment of schools will be a useless expense.

IV. To introduce a reform in morality, the Government have applied to France for a hundred decent priests. There are now in Hayti between thirty and forty priests, all of whom, with one exception, are white men, and great rascals; openly profligate, avaricious and abandoned in their conduct, nearly every one of them.

V. The National Guard has been reorganized—a measure which will yet enable the Government to dispense with the present ruinous military system, and depend on it and a small regular standing army for all ordinary exigencies of government. It forms a barrier, also, against ignorant domination, which (if the blacks are in every respect treated as equals will prove hereafter an impossible evil. This Guard existed in the time of BOYER, but its object then was to keep back the blacks from political power, which now, thanks to SOULOUQUE, (who taught the blacks their power as well as the mulattoes their madness and danger,) is a thing that can never be repeated.

VI. The pay of the executive, judiciary, and military officials has been increased, which will do much to extinguish the universal corruption in high places which distinguised the era of SOULOUQUE.

VII. The cinquieme on coffee has been abolished, and a tax, (to be partly paid in the currency of the country) has been substituted for it. SOULOUQUE made secret issues of paper money but refused to take a single bill in payment of taxes.

VIII. Peace has been made, or guarantees have been given that peace will be kept with the Eastern part of the island. This will revive the lucrative commerce which formerly existed between the East and West—as soon, at least, as the Dominicans are at peace, or get a sensible government. The re-union of the Island is now but an affair of time.

IX. A Naval School has been established.

X. A model farm is in course of being established.

XI. The Police system is in course of reorganization.

XII. The Islands of Gonave and Tortuga, with their valuable timbers, have been thrown open for the competition of foreign capitalists.

XIII. The term of service in the army has been reduced from life to nine years.

XIV. The liberty of speech and the Press has been firmly established.

XV. The practice of SOULOUQUE, of dictating to the Judges, has been abolished.

XVI. Notwithstanding the necessities of the Revolution, no new paper money has been issued; only enough has been issued to substitute for the torn and defaced bills that are brought to the Treasury. There is between forty and fifty millions of this paper in circulation; worth, at the present rate of exchange, about $2,500,000. This is to be recalled as soon as the finances of the Republic permit.

XVII. Improved arms for the military have been purchased from the United States and ordered from France.

XVIII. Schools for girls have been established. This is a new reform, and one greatly demanded. The education of girls, whether under CHRISTOPHER' BOYER, the Four Presidents, or SOULOUQUE, has always been greatly neglected in Hayti. Two girls' schools, I believe, were established by PETION, but they fell into disuse.

XIX. A new system of remunerating Custom-house officials has been established, by which the gigantic "dilapidations" which have always distinguished that Department, will be rendered more difficult, if not extinguished.

XX. Emigration has been encouraged. The exiles banished by SOULOUQUE have returned in great numbers, bringing with them more both of wealth and intelligence than they took away. Several hundreds of new settlers have been brought from New-Orleans. The Government have in Press the following document:

REPUBLIC OF HAYTI—CALL FOR EMIGRATION.

Men of our race dispersed in the United States! Your fate, your social position, instead of ameliorating, daily becomes worse. The chains of those who are slaves are riveted—and prejudice, more implacable, perhaps, than servitude, pursues and crushes down the free. Everything is contested with us in that country in which, nevertheless, they boast of liberty; they have invented a new Slavery for the free who believed that they had now no masters; it is this humiliating patronage which is revolting to your hearts. Philanthropy, in spite of its noble efforts, seems more powerless than ever to make your cause triumphant. Contempt and hatred increase against you, and the people of the United States wish to eject you from its bosom.

Well! come to us; the doors of Hayti are open to you. By a happy coincidence which Providence seems to have reserved for you, Hayti has risen from the long debasement in which a tyrannical government had held her; liberty is restored there. Come and join us; come and bring to us a contingent of power, of light, of work; come, and, together with us, make our common country prosper. We will come, by this means, to the aid of the philanthropists who make such generous efforts to break the irons of those of ours who are still in Slavery.

Our institutions are liberal. The Government is mild and moderate. Our soil is virgin and rich; we have large tracts of good land—nearly all uncultivated—which ask only intelligent workmen to till them; everything assures you, in this country, of a happy future.

For those among you possessing capital, it will be easy for them to find at once their place among us. The country offers them immediate resources. They can count on the solicitude of the Government and on its special protection. Our society is ready to adopt them, and reserves for them a fraternal welcome. They will enjoy here all the consideration that they merit; they will occupy the rank that their respectability assigns them; all the things that a blind and barbarous prejudice refuses to them in countries inhospitable to our race.

The poorer emigrants shall have the right to all that their situation demands. The Government will provide for their first necessities, and will take the proper measures to assure them of a quiet and honorable asylum, as well as to facilitate for them the means of obtaining employment.

It is very natural that you should ask, before coming to an unknown country, what are the facilities that will be offered to you, as well for the satisfaction of your first needs as for your definitive establishment. This thought has seriously occupied the Chief of the Republic and his Government.

I proceed to state the determination to which it has come:

To such of you as are not able to pay the expenses of the passage, aid will be given from the public Treasury.

Agents, whom I shall presently designate to the United States, will be charged to make the necessary engagements in this respect.

On their arrival here the emigrants will find lodging gratuitously, where, during the first days, their needs will be provided for.

Government will occupy itself from this time with providing means to offer to each arrival, either on private estates or the public domains, with sufficiently remunerative work.

Every individual, the issue of African blood, ought, on his arrival, to declare his wish to be naturalized; and, after one year's residence, he can become a citizen of Hayti, enjoying all his civil and political rights.

The emigrants will be dispensed with from military service, but their children, when they are of the requisite age, shall be held to do the service conformably to the laws of the country; that is to say, for a limited time and by the result of conscription. [Par suite du tirage au sort.]

This exception does not constitute, in their favor, a modification of the law on the National Guard, of which every citizen should form a part.

You will have power, also, freely to profess your religion.

I have spoken here only of the members of the African race who groan in the United States, more than elsewhere, by reason of the ignoble prejudice of color; but our sympathies are equally extended to all those of our origin, who, throughout the world, are trodden under foot by the same sufferings. Let them come to us! The bosom of the country is open to them also. I repeat it—they will be able to acquire, either on the public or private estates, fertile lands, on which, by the aid of assiduous work, they will find that happiness which in their actual condition they cannot hope to find.

The man whom God has pointed out with his finger to elevate the dignity of his race is found.

The hour of the reunion for all the children of Hayti is sounded! Let them be well convinced that Hayti is the bulwark of their liberty!

Given at the office of the Secretary of State of the Interior at Port-au-Prince, the 22d August, 1859, 56th year of Independence.

The Brooklyn Park—What Sort of a Park should Brooklyn have?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

The Commissioners for locating a Park in Brooklyn have reported in favor of 1,200 acres, located five to six miles from Fulton and Division-avenue Ferries, and including the Ridgewood Water Works and three cemeteries. This matter should be well understood. Such Parks are supposed to cost a little something, and if wrongly placed must defeat real requirements. Aside from the insurmountable fact that the contiguous festivities of a Park and the solemnities of a burial ground must greatly defeat the design of either of these necessary institutions, the distance of the proposed location is such as to render this merely a park of name, and not of practical convenience and utility. Let us consider the interests of New-York and Brooklyn together, as they are homogeneous in this matter. New-York has but just commenced its strides of commercial greatness, and has only had railroad accommodations for an internal Winter commerce since the last census. City improvements must extend in a relative distance from its centre of business. The City Hall Park is above this business centre, and must so continue. A compass revolving from this point upon an outer line of Fiftieth-street, the extreme limit of the present population, shows that it extends to nearly the same distance in Brooklyn. Until New-York neared Canal-street, and distance became a consideration in business, Brooklyn was of but little immediate consequence. From that period, and the convenient establishment of steam ferries, their growth compares as follows:

Years.	New-York.	Brooklyn and Williamsb'gh.
1820	123,706	8,175
1830	202,588	19,396
1840	312,852	46,233
1850	515,394	122,850
1855	629,810	205,250
1860 (estimated)	839,746	333,530

New-York has doubled once in fifteen years, Brooklyn once in eight years, or as 6⅔ is to 12⅔, with a decreasing ratio in New-York, and an increasing ratio in Brooklyn. We will continue this calculation upon the above basis for New-York, and 12⅔ per cent. less for Brooklyn, starting with actual figures:

Years.	New-York.	Years.	Brooklyn.
1855	629,810	1855	205,250
1870	1,251,620	1864	410,500
1885	2,483,240	1873	821,000
1900	4,966,480	1882	1,642,000
		1899	3,284,000
		1900	6,568,000

From the Battery to Fiftieth-street is 4¾ miles, on the average width of say 1⅓ miles, or say 7 square miles; estimate population of this District at 700,000. New-York is a narrow strip of land—hence all improvements must be in one direction, and reach the Central Park within a reasonable time. Brooklyn has a present water-front of over 7 miles, divided at Fulton Ferry, directly opposite the centre of business.

And with an unlimited back country, extending this compass line to include the proposed Park, would give an average depth of population of 3½ miles, or 22½ square miles, with a corresponding population of 2,250,000. Can this dense mass of human beings exist with Parks only upon their borders? Why now go five miles to a Park, while locations are unoccupied much nearer? But can New-York sustain its present increase? Can the avenues traversing this island accommodate its population at the necessary times of day? Does not the price of real estate and the expense of living exclude a majority of persons from occupying property between Twenty-third-street and One Hundred and Sixth-street, which is 7½ miles from the Battery, and has by actual calculation a capacity for only 1,250,000 population to that point.

It will be seen from the above (and it is admitted upon all hands that Brooklyn must speedily exceed New York in population) that any great change in the location of business is an absurdity; and that hotels, theatres, &c., will soon centre upon Brooklyn Heights as a convenient and eligible necessity. Ought not the citizens of this future Metropolis of the World to be alive to their interests and glory. New York can have no jealousies. She has the commerce, and its guardians can best protect it by residing in Brooklyn. But the Cities will soon be one. Nothing can do more to accelerate these inevitable movements than the easy grading of streets and the ample distribution of parks. The large Park should now have a central and convenient location upon Prospect Hill, inclosing about 300 acres upon both sides of Flatbush-avenue, a position unsurpassed in variety of scenery, and which is about equi-distance from the Fulton, Hamilton-avenue and Division-avenue Ferries. Lesser Parks should be immediately located in both the Eastern and Southern Districts. Another five years will put land out of the market for any such purpose. B.

Fashions for September.

From Le Follet.

The fair fashionables have now all fled from our cities, and, in acquainting our readers with what is a la mode, we may appropriately commence with a description of ladies' hats, which are worn more than ever, both in the country and at the sea-side, and in shapes and colors infinitely varied.

The "Trianon" hat is very pretty made in white chip, trimmed with a wreath of acacia roses, with soft velvet leaves, and tufts of roses fastened by black velvet bows placed rather forward under the front. This same shape is also made in Panama straw, and in rice straw; the former is very elegant, ornamented with a boquet of field flowers placed on the front of the crown, and with long maize ribbon strings and bouquets of flowers inside the front—the latter simply trimmed with a wreath of mauve flowers, and strings of mauve and black velvet.

The most elegant riding-hat now worn is the "Milanais," in chip. It is very much turned up at the sides, bound with white taffetas, and ornamented by a long, white feather, spotted with black, hanging quite on the shoulder.

Brown straw hats are generally bound with black velvet, and trimmed with tufts of coq feathers, or with a long black or brown feather, reaching the shoulder.

Drab straws are pretty, trimmed with a willow plume, drab spotted with black.

The same style of feather in white or green, is worn on white straw hats. Pheasant feathers are also frequently adopted.

Among the prettiest hats we have seen this season were two of white and black mixed straw, trimmed with narrow black velvet and white coq feathers.

Straw bonnets will shortly cease to be in vogue. Those made of crape and trimmed with velvet are exceedingly stylish.

White chip and Panama plait bonnets are still worn; these are mostly trimmed with rich ribbon, black or dark colors, embroidered in Pompadour bouquets, field flowers, or saule feathers.

For evening coiffures, Ceres wreaths are in great favor. Those formed of field flowers and wheat-ears are generally becoming, and form a pleasant contrast with a white tarlatan dress.

We have seen a charming head-dress, composed of chinaasters and gold wheat-ears; in front it formed a small diadem, and passing under the hair joined a large boquet of similar flowers, which entirely covered the back of the head. Wreaths of black and green grapes, with gold skeleton leaves, are exceedingly elegant, as well as those made with leaves of colored crape, veined with gold or silver. Lace is still much used in coiffures, and will ever be in request on account of its being so generally becoming.

Ribbons are used in trimming every part of the toilette, from the slipper to the coiffure. A very narrow ribbon is often placed on the edge of the hem in flounces of a thin material. This ribbon is sometimes quite plain, at others it is edged with black lace, white guipure, or blond.

On a very pretty laurel-green dress lately made in one of our first houses were seven flounces, each edged with a fluted ribbon of the same color as the dress.

A handsome, yet quiet-looking, walking-dress, we have noticed and admired was of light brown taffetas antique, with a single skirt set in very large plaits. Plain high body, ornamented on the front with brandebourgs, and fastened with buttons of silk and velvet of the same color as the dress. Small bishop sleeves, with wristbands and epaulettes, trimmed to match the body. With this dress was worn a beautiful black Chantilly lace shawl, and a white chipped bonnet, simply trimmed with a broad maize ribbon straight across, with long strings; a small but rich Chantilly fall being the only other ornament.

Another less rich but gayer toilette was of taffetas, of a light drab shade, with a pattern of bright-colored bouquets of flowers. This was made with two skirts, each ornamented with a fluted purple ribbon. The body was cut square, and open in front; the sleeves were open and rather short. A Pompadour mantle of white muslin, trimmed with bouillonnes lined with purple ribbon, with a small hood, was thrown over this dress. The bonnet was rice straw, edged with purple velvet and trimmed with bouquets of flowers and fruit. The fall was blonde, figured with small purple flowers.

The most fashionable ball dresses at the watering-places are composed of tarlatan, trimmed with gauffered flounces.

The Rivalry of France and England.

From the London Times, Sept. 3.

We do not believe it to be true, and there is no reason for the allegation, that any journal, orator, or politician of any kind has said a word to excite the susceptibilities of France, or create alarm, for the selfish reason assigned by M. DE MORNY—viz., for the sake of popularity. The only feeling of the British people is a simple apprehension of finding themselves some day the object of attack by an ambitious, fickle, and excitable neighbor, and a consequent determination to be prepared for the emergency. With us this is entirely a matter of self-preservation. We do not wish to take from France one acre, one town, one ship, one man; but neither do we wish to lose one. We are painfully aware that now for several generations it has been the natural instinct of France to perform a grand part in European politics, and compose her internal troubles, under a military dictator, or an absolutist dynasty. It is a feeling now wholly independent of this or that man, this or that family; and nobody here dreams that we should find France a safer neighborhood under the temporary check of an experimental Constitution. But a nation which has made up its mind to be governed by a military chief, which emphatically seizes that refuge from internal disorders and that instrument of national glory, must ever inspire just apprehensions in a neighbor as emphatically resolved against this course. Were England now to find such a Government established in London as it sees at Paris, we should expect to see half the middle and upper classes of this country following the example of the Pilgrim Fathers on a similar emergency. A Great Eastern a week for ten years would hardly suffice for the exodus of everything that is really British in these isles. Whence this overpowering feeling of our natures? It is the habitual resolution to be our own masters. We will not depend on the caprice, the folly, or even the wisdom of any one man. If such be our feeling with regard to our own institutions, the occupant of our palaces, and the head of our own army, our own civil and ecclesiastical establishments, it is not extraordinary that we will not depend on the mercy or the sanity of the man, whoever he may be, occupying the Tuileries. There is no mincing the matter, and we say it with all respect, we have just seen in Italy a specimen of what such a man, may do, without any preparation, and with the ordinary peace establishments of France. As the Presse reminds us, France is now aware, and was told a fortnight ago by a member of her Corps Législatif, that "henceforth, at her own pleasure, and choosing her own time, she can suddenly throw from 50,000 to 60,000 men on any point she pleases of an enemy's territory." So, even if feelings be put out of the question—even it happened that through some common pursuit England and France were at this moment in a state of more than usual accord, still we should make a point of being prepared for a change in her feelings or policy. This would be nothing more than a logical sequence from the jealousy we show in our domestic institutions. We will not be at the mercy of an Englishman, much less, therefore, of a foreigner.

That is the only sentiment which is allowed to show itself, and to influence the conduct of England. No doubt there are people here, as there are everywhere, who crave for the excitement of war, it matters not with whom. But this is not the ruling sentiment, nor the sentiment of any but a very small minority. England only consults her safety.

Decisions in Admiralty on Appeal.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—SEPT. 20.

Before Judge Nelson.

JURISDICTION—INTERNAL COMMERCE—REPAIRS.

Levi Hayden et al vs. The Steamboat Troy.—This was an action brought to recover for supplies furnished to the steamboat Troy, a domestic vessel. The libel was filed Aug. 18, 1857. The claimants did not raise the question of jurisdiction in their answer, but placed their defence on other grounds, and thereupon a decree was rendered against the steamboat on April 9, 1858, for the sum of $1,344, from which decree the claimants appealed to this Court. In December Term of the United States Supreme Court, the 12th Rule of that Court, authorizing the District Courts to take cognizance of liens on domestic vessels under State laws was modified so as to take away that jurisdiction, the modification of the rule to go into effect May 1, 1859. The claimants thereupon took testimony to show that the Troy was engaged in navigating between Troy and New-York.

NELSON, C., J.—The libel in this case was filed by the libelants to recover for materials, supplied to and work done upon the steamboat Troy in July, 1857. It was agreed by the counsel on both sides that the Troy was engaged in running upon the North River between the ports of Troy and New-York and intermediate places, exclusively within the State of New-York, and that the question submitted is, whether upon this state of facts the Court below had jurisdiction of the case.

In the case of Allen vs. Newbury, (21.How., 224,) the Supreme Court of the United States held that the District Court of the State of Wisconsin had no jurisdiction over a contract of affreightment of goods between the ports of Two Rivers and Milwaukee, both being within the same State; that the contract related to the purely internal commerce of the State, which was not within the cognizance of the Admiralty. And again, at the same term, in the case of Maguire vs. Card, (ib. p. 248,) it was held that the District Court of California had no jurisdiction over a contract for supplies furnished the Goliah, a steamboat engaged in the business of navigation and trade on the Sacramento River, and between ports exclusively within the State of California. The Court regarded this case as governed by the previous case of Allen vs. Newbury.

The case last decided comes fully up to the one in hand. The principle is, that a contract arising out of the trade and navigation of a vessel engaged in the purely internal commerce of a State, is governed by State laws and belongs exclusively to State cognizance. In the case of the Goliah, the supplies furnished were coal; in the present case, materials and labor in the repair of the vessel.

We make no question under the local law giving a lien in the case as made in the libel, for the suit was commenced before the change of the Rule, refusing longer to recognize and enforce these liens in the Admiralty. That did not take effect till 1st May, 1859. All suits commenced previous to this time were saved. But this case does not depend upon that question. It turns upon the ground that the contract is not one within the Admiralty, as held in the two cases above referred to. The local law as to the lien has no bearing upon the question.

We must, therefore, for the reason given, reverse the decree below for want of jurisdiction in that Court, and dismiss the libel.

For libelants, Mr. Huntly; for claimants and appelants, Messrs. Beebe, Dean Donohue.

JURISDICTION—REPAIRS—STATE LAWS.

William W. Tupper et al., vs. The steamship St. Lawrence, Meyer & Stucken claimants.—This was also an action brought to recover the value of repairs furnished to the steamship in the port of New-York. The libel was filed in April, 1856. The final decree was rendered in the District Court in favor of the libelants, in January, 1858, for $2,250 89. The claimants appealed from this decree, and filed a new answer in the Circuit Court, setting up, among other things, that the vessel was a domestic vessel, and the Court below had therefore no jurisdiction of the action. The appeal came on for argument this morning, when Judge NELSON said that in all cases commenced before the 1st of May last, when the new rule of law established by the Supreme Court in their modification of the 12th Rule went into effect, the law was as it had been for years before, viz.: that the Federal Courts had the right to and would enforce the lien given by State statutes upon domestic vessels; but in cases occurring after that date, they would not exercise jurisdiction over such liens. This case, therefore, being commenced before that date, he should affirm the decree of the Court below.

For libelants, Mr. J. T. Williams; for claimants and appelants, Messrs. Beebe, Dean & Donohue.

MOTION TO SUBSTITUTE ATTORNEY.

The Virginia Fire and Marine Insurance Company vs. Nathaniel Blanchard et al.—This was a motion to compel the former attorney of the defendant to surrender the papers, and that another attorney be substituted in his place.

Motion granted, on payment to the former attorney of his costs, to be taxed.

For the motion, Mr. Stevens; in opposition, Mr. Moultrie.

INJUNCTION.

F. H. Bartholomew vs. Nathaniel Sawyer et al.—This was a suit in equity, to obtain an injunction, restraining the defendants from infringing upon a patent issued to him for machinery for water-closet. In a trial at law between the same parties, the validity of the plaintiff's patent was established and damages awarded against the defendants. A motion for a new trial on a case was argued a few days ago, before Judges NELSON and INGERSOLL, and the motion denied.

Judge INGERSOLL thereupon, this morning, made his decision in this equity suit, granting the injunction, pursuant to the prayer of the bill.

F. H. Bartholomew vs. James Jones et al.—In this case, which was similar to the preceding one, a similar injunction was awarded.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT—SEPT. 20.

Before Judge Betts.

AN OLD CASE REVIVED.

In the matter of the estate of John Pintard, a Bankrupt.—On the 28th day of July, 1800, the Commissioners of Bankruptcy, under the Bankrupt act of 1800, declared John Pintard a bankrupt and took possession of his estate, and on May 29, 1807, assigned the same to James Farquhar and Benjamin I. Moore, who on May 30 sold all the lands and tenements of the bankrupt, situate in the Counties of Ulster and Orange, in the State of New-York, for $750.

And now Louise Scroop and Thomas L. Scroop present a petition to the Court setting up these facts, and also stating that they are not informed of any further or other action of the Commissioners in the matter; that none of the Commissioners or assignees are now living; that the bankrupt died June 21, 1844, and by his will devised all his estate to Andrew Warner in trust for the petitioner Louise H. Scroop, who was a daughter of the bankrupt; and that the said trustee has since conveyed to her all said estate, and that they are informed that the sale of May 30, 1807, was not of all the lands, &c., of the estate of the bankrupt, but that the said trust still remains in part unexecuted.

They, therefore, pray that the Court will appoint some suitable persons in place of said Commissioners and Assignees, so that any remaining interest and estate of the bankrupt may be disposed of, and the rights of the petitioners be ascertained and determined.

BETTS, J.—A cardinal defect in the application is that it avers no fact over which this Court can exercise jurisdiction. It appears by an exemplification of conveyances accompanying the petition, that more than fifty years since all the estate, interests and equities subsisting in the bankrupt at the time his bankruptcy was declared, were under the most comprehensive and absolute terms of grant, formerly conveyed by the Commissioners of Bankruptcy to regular assignees of the bankrupt, and that they also, at that distant period, divested themselves of specific portions of property by regular and solemn deed of grant. No action of the Court, of its officers, of the creditors of the bankrupt, of himself or of his personal representatives, is averred to have been taken in relation to the premises in now a lapse of more than half a century. That long unmoved silence unexplained, denotes that the interests once connected with the subject matter, are now closed and barred forever.

Courts of Justice will never authorize their powers to be put in motion to resuscitate known rights, after having been allowed to sleep so long; much less can these powers be used in fishing for evidence of claims not shown to have had a legal value or even an existence.

The petitioners furnish no semblance of evidence that the assignees took any estate not fully administered upon, or that the bankrupt, at his decease, left any interest by his Will, which did not belong to his creditors. His heirs or devisees have no right to claim the interposition of the Court to enforce, at this time, a performance of the trust cast upon his assignees, (supposing there was a dereliction of duty on their part,) without first establishing that there is an inheritance yet outstanding, within the reach and control of the Court, which the Court may have wielded and applied to their benefit, by reviving the bankrupt proceedings, and having them duly carried forward to completiod.

The prayer of the petitioners is accordingly denied.

SUPREME COURT—GENERAL TERM—SEPT. 20.

Judges Roosevelt, Sutherland and Emott.

NOTICE.

The Court promulgated the following order:

Ordered, That after the present term, no cause on the day calendar of the General Term will be postponed on account of the engagements of counsel in another court.

Thirty causes will be placed on the day calendar until otherwise ordered.

CIRCUIT.

Before Justice Potter.

EVIDENCE OF PLAINTIFFS' COPARTNERSHIP IN AN ACTION BY PARTNERS ON A PROMISSORY NOTE.

John L. Wilson and Allston Wilson vs. Frances M. Havens.—This was an action to recover of the defendant the sum of $7,295 62, with interest from the 2d day of June, 1857, on a promissory note made by her on that day for that amount, payable to the order of George W. Soule.

This note was subsequently transferred to the plaintiffs, who sued on the note.

The defence was that the note was transferred to the plaintiffs without consideration accruing to the defendant; that the defendant never received anything on the note; and that the plaintiffs only pretended to hold the note as part payment of an antecedent indebtedness of the payee to them.

After the action was commenced Miss Havens died, and the present action was continued against Mr. E. B. Sackett, her administrator. On the trial counsel for the defendant objected that the plaintiffs could not go on with their case until they had shown themselves partners in business, as they alleged themselves to be such, and held and sued upon the note as such. The plaintiffs' counsel then contended that as they appeared in Court jointly and sued jointly as holders of the note, they must be presumed to be the proper holders unless they were proven not to be such. The Court held that the plaintiffs must show that they were partners in business as they alleged themselves to be, and directed them so to do. One or two witnesses were then put upon the stand, but it was only proven that the plaintiffs had been partners up to the first of May, 1857, and after that only for purposes of liquidation. The Court held that their present relations did not warrant their traffic in notes. Mr. Soule, the payee of the note, was afterwards put upon the stand, and incidentally stated that the consideration of the note as between himself and the plaintiffs, was a note of the plaintiffs for $2,100, the money on which he received, but never paid any of it over to the defendant or her administrator. The Court held that the fact that the firm had thus given their note in payment for the one now sued upon, was no evidence of their copartnership sufficient to enable them to bring the present suit jointly, and ordered a non-suit. Plaintiffs' counsel then requested the Court to state, for their benefit, who should bring suit on the note, as they were at a loss to know; but the defendant's counsel objected, unless they first tendered a fee. Judge POTTER stated that he had ceased to practice, and should not volunteer his opinion. Plaintiffs' counsel then asked and obtained twenty days, in which to make a case to take the question to the General Term.

Monell, Willard and Howe for plaintiff.
Luther R. Marsh for defendant.

THE HUDSON CITY TAR AND FEATHER SUIT.

William Mower vs. Peter Bogardus, Abraham Bogardus, William Hunt, Myron Van Dusen, Silas H. Toby, Chas. L. Winchell and A. V. V. Elting.—This was an action to recover of the defendants, citizens of Hudson, damages in the sum of $20,000, for an outrage alleged to have been committed by them on the plaintiff, a colored man, in the latter part of July, 1856. He, at the time, was a barber in Hudson City. The assault was carried to the extent of tarring and feathering the plaintiff. His complaint set up the facts which appear in his own evidence, which we state below quite fully.

The answer admits that the plaintiff was tarred and feathered as alleged in the complaint, but denied that the defendants had anything to do with it; and further avowed that the plaintiff had been guilty of seducing away from her father's house the daughter of Mr. Elting, one of the defendants, a young lady alleged to be of unsound mind; and that the plaintiff did, by such means, have criminal intercourse with her, which was avowed as a sufficient reason for the chastisement of the plaintiff inflicted by defendants.

The complaint in the case was filed in April, 1858, but has never before been reached on the calendar. The place of trial was changed to this county by proceedings heretofore had, founded on affidavits of the plaintiff and others, to the effect that he could not safely proceed to bring his action to trial in the City of Hudson. The cause coming on to-day was opened on behalf of the plaintiff by Luther R. Marsh, Esq. After his address, the plaintiff was put upon the stand as a witness in his own behalf, and testified, substantially, as follows:

Mr. Mower, plaintiff, sworn—My age is forty-nine or fifty years; I have lived in Hudson in the neighborhood of fifteen years; I have a family, a wife and three children; I had a house and lot there; my house and lot were worth to me $2,000; my furniture was worth perhaps $150; my shop tools were worth about $300; my business was worth to me about $25 per week; I was an officer in the church there; in the latter part of July, 1856, I was in my shop, engaged in shaving a gentleman, and hearing some one walking backwards and forwards, and upon opening my shop-door, to see who it was, the mob rushed in, headed by one Buck Hammond, who said they wanted me; and the first I knew thereafter, I was picked up by Myron Van Dusen; Van Dusen said (which was the first I heard) "Hold on, boys, don't let's kill him here, let's take him on the Square." (This was in front of the shop.) I said "What in the name of heaven are you going to do;" I had then seen that my wrist was broken; Van Dusen said I should not have fought back; I asked what they were going to do with me; he said they wanted to talk with me; I then asked if they could not talk with me there; he then laid hold of me and took me out to the Square, when Van Dusen said, "Boys, I've got him here, now form your ring, and do with him what you please;" the Square was about two blocks from my shop; the mob followed these, and the cry was, "Kill him;" they then ordered me to strip myself; I asked what for; they said, "No matter, strip yourself, or it may be worse for you;" Abraham Bogardus and Charley Winchell stood near me; I asked of Bogardus what it all meant; he said he knew nothing about it, but advised me to strip myself; Winchell said, "If you have any watch or money give it to Mr. Bogardus;" and Mr. Bogardus said, "Yes, let me have it;" I then saw Peter Bogardus, and asked him what it meant; he said he knew nothing about it; advised me to strip, and jumped back; Winchell said, "Don't stand here talking, but strip yourself;" Winchell then laid hold of me and aided in stripping me, and Abraham Bogardus took my watch and money; they then thrust me down and stripped my clothes off and tarred and feathered me; they then said it had been their painful duty to tar and feather me, and it was ordered that I leave the city by that "Vigilance Committee of the City of Hudson;" they said I was not to return to the city; about this time, one William H. Hunt, (a butcher,) said: "Let me come in there with my butcher knife, and I will make an end of him;" the witness then related the process of the tarring and feathering; he said they took a swab and rubbed the tar on harshly, until he was smeared, and then some one of the crowd rushed in and turned the entire contents of the pail on his head; they then threw handsfull of sand in his eyes, and gave him a coat of feathers; Winchell then said, "Open the ring," and some one called for a rail; Winchell said, "No matter, open the ring," and when it was open Winchell said, "Run, for your life;" I did not run, as I was trying to get the tar and sand out of my eyes so that I could see; I then started to walk off, when Winchell told me to run or they would kill me; giving me a push; I looked back and saw some one in, his coat sleeves after me, who struck at me, but missed his aim and fell; I then heard a pistol report; they then chased me perhaps a quarter of a mile over sharp cinders which cut my feet; I finally arrived at a thorn or bramble bush and tried to go into it, but the thorns were so thick I could not; they, however, thought I went in there, (and in trying to go into the bramble I got my feet full of thorns) and they fired perhaps a dozen shots into the thorn-bush; I then strolled about and nearly lost myself in a marsh, but finally found myself in the neighborhood of my own house, and heard my dog bark, and heard the mob trying to break into my house; I remained in that place till about three o'clock, when I ventured home, and found the house much damaged, doors and furniture broken, &c.; I then got oil and tried to relieve my pains, and left the City of Hudson afterwards because the Mayor and other authorities of Hudson came to me and said they could not protect me; I then came to my cousin's, in this City, No. 45 Laurens-street; her name is Dinah Crosby; I could get no shoe on, and could not get one on for three months; I was in a very bad condition, and did not get off my bed without assistance for three months: I cannot now do anything with my right hand, and never expect to be able to labor with it; my skin afterwards peeled off me, and thorns festered out of my flesh; I have remained in this City since, except once, when I went up to Hudson, and remained in the house of Mr. Pell, while I stayed, secretly; at that time Mr. Miller, one of the counsel for the defendants, agreed to take up my case and bring it to this City, but he has stopped it since—I don't know why; I have not dared to go to Hudson to occupy my house since; I have not had the use of it; I had about a hundred dollars in my house of my own, and in my shop about $100 that belonged to the church, of which I was Treasurer; there was also about $15 or $20 in the drawers of the shop; about $7c or $80 were taken from me by the mob; I have not received a dollar from these since I left; I took $20 when I came away; I have received two watches from them since I left; but as I had three watches I do not know that I have received the one taken away from me; I had shaved all these gentlemen who are defendants; I had a bill against Toby, when the assault occurred. (Witness had testified that Toby called out in the crowd to put on he tar, and he would pay expenses.)

On cross-examination, the witness was put through a long questioning, but it did not materially change his evidence. He identified all the parties named in his complaint, who were in court.

I heard that Mr. Elting, one of the defendants, had a daughter, but did not know her; I never saw Anna Elting; I never went behind Mr. Elting's house and whistled, as a signal to induce his daughter to come out; I was always whistling or singing, unless asleep; Miss Elting was never in my shop; I do not know her; I never went upon the steps of Mr. Van Dusen's store and made signals to this girl: I don't know such a woman; I never met Miss Elting in Jackson's saloon in Hudson. (Witness was quite indignant at the repetition of questions as to Miss Elting.)

The witness was then examined again as to the transactions on the night he was outraged, and testified substantially the same as upon his direct examination. Witness however, said he had not made an affidavit, to prevent the case being tried in Hudson, in which he stated that one Hunt, and another, Howard, were of the party that took him out of his shop. When his affidavit showed that he had thus sworn: and also, he stated that he had not sworn that Mr. Elting was on the ground at the time of the outrage upon him, when his affidavit showed that he had so sworn,

It appeared that plaintiff is now a barber on a small scale in Mott-street, at present, where he has been since his refuge in this City.

Before the cross-examination of the plaintiff was closed the Court adj

MUSICAL.

THE BRIGGS PATENT PIANO-FORTE
Are all of the full scale of 7-octave. The most experienced workmen, the greatest perfection of mechanical skill, and the best seasoned materials are employed in their manufacture.
They are constructed on a solid iron frame or bed-plate, entirely separate from the case, thus relieving the case, sound-boards and all the wood-work from the strain of the strings, making them much more solid and enduring. There are two sounding boards, arranged as those of a violin, giving three times the amount of vibrating surface found in any other piano; which, being free from the strain of the strings, becomes more sonorous and pure on their vibrations as the piano becomes older. Their construction is the most simple and scientific, and they are the most enduring and full-toned pianos ever made. Call and see them, at WM. NEWS OF THE DAY.

The steamship Arabia, of the Cunard line, with European advices to September 10, reached Halifax last evening. Owing to the misunderstanding existing between the Nova Scotia Telegraph Company and the Associated Press, the dispatches, in due course, we should have received immediately upon her arrival, will only come to hand in time for our evening edition. The telegraphic hiatus, as usual, was supplied by horse-express to Sackville. No tidings of the Nova Scotia, due at Quebec, or of the New-York, due here, have been received.

The steamship Star of the West left yesterday for Aspinwall with a large number of passengers and the United States mails. This is the last trip to be made under the contract heretofore existing with the United States Mail Company, (M. O. Roberts' line) and the business is hereafter to be done by the North Atlantic Steamship Company, the steamers Baltic, Atlantic and Adriatic being used for service on the Atlantic side. An advertisement elsewhere announces that the ticket-office of the Company is also now moved from No. 177 West-street to the pier at the foot of Canal-street, the famous dépôt of the Collins line.

Lieut.-Gen. Scott sailed, yesterday, in the Star of the West, on his mission to Washington Territory, whither he has been ordered by the President, in view of the conflict of authority between the British and American authorities upon the Island of San Juan. Large crowds gathered on the pier at which the steamer lay, and on the wharves and shipping near it, and amid loud cheering and the firing of cannon, the General started on his voyage.

A telegraphic dispatch from New-Orleans announces the death of Dr. Robert M. Graham, from the effects of a wound received in a shooting affray with Mr. Ernest Tolldane. The affray grew out of a political difficulty. This is undoubtedly the same Dr. Robert M. Graham who figured before our Courts in the year 1854, as the murderer of Col. Charles Loring, of California, at the St. Nicholas Hotel, under the most aggravated circumstances. Col. Loring, with his wife, occupied apartments at the St. Nicholas, as likewise did Dr. Graham and his family—their respective rooms being contiguous. On the afternoon and night of Tuesday, Aug. 1, Dr. Graham, under the influence of liquor, created considerable disturbance in the hotel, but was induced to retire to his room, where he remained quietly until towards daylight, on Wednesday, when he arose from his bed, and wanting water, left his room, and commenced to ring the chambermaid's bell violently in the hall. Col. Loring, whose wife was ill, remonstrated with him, and requested him to desist, but Graham paid no attention to his appeal, and at last Col. Loring went down to the office of the hotel to obtain the removal of Graham. As he was ascending the stairs, on his return, he was met by Graham, and an altercation ensued, which resulted in the stabbing of Loring. The weapon used was the long blade of a sword-cane, which was plunged into Loring's side with great violence, where it was twisted about and bent before it was pulled out. A Coroner's inquest was immediately commenced, which resulted in the committal of Graham to abide the action of the Grand Jury. The trial was commenced in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, before Judge Mitchell, on the 3d of October, 1854, and continued until the evening of the 9th, the Jury, at 2½ o'clock the next morning, finding a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree. He was sentenced to the State Prison at Sing Sing, but was pardoned by Gov. Clark on the 4th of March, 1856, after serving upwards of a year of his time.

The Convention of the Americans of this State, for the nomination of candidates for State officers, will assemble at Utica to-day. Very little excitement is anticipated on the occasion, no opposition of consequence to the plan of dividing the ticket between the candidates of the two most prominent parties having developed itself. Only about one hundred and twenty persons had arrived in Utica up to last evening to attend the Convention, including the principal men of the party.

The State Convention of the Republicans of Massachusetts, for the nomination of candidates for State officers, assembled at Fitchburgh yesterday. The attendance of delegates was very large, and the proceedings were characterized by great unanimity. All the present State officers were nominated for reelection—Gov. Banks receiving on the first ballot 627 out of the 712 votes cast. His nomination was made unanimous.

By the arrival of the Overland Mail at St. Louis we have later news from California, Oregon and the Island of San Juan. Dates from San Francisco are to the 25th ult. Business was more active, though of a speculative character. A painful report reaches us from Oregon, to the effect that a body of one hundred and forty United States troops, under command of Capt. Wallen, had been massacred by the Snake Indians. At Fort Dallas the report was received with credit. Our San Juan Island affairs had undergone no change of moment. The American troops, the number of which had been increased to 400, still held possession.

By the arrival of the brrig T. M. Mayhew, we have Bermuda papers of the 6th inst. There is not a word of news.

A correspondence has passed between the Reform Committee of Baltimore and Mayor Swann in regard to the adoption of measures to quell the rowdyism of that city. The Committee having requested the Mayor's coöperation in the work of reform, Mr. Swann replied in a curt letter, declining to acknowledge the authority of the Committee. Accompanying this reply was an Address to the citizens of Baltimore, in which the Mayor laid the blame of the recent outrages upon the Press, which, he said, had incited the people to riot and bloodshed. He recommends a revision of the criminal system, in order to provide more effectual safeguards.

Dr. J. C. Ayer has been held to bail, in Boston, in the sum of $20,000, to answer for his recent assault upon Mr. Fay, the Secretary of the Middlesex Mills Company. Mr. Fay is recovering from his injuries.

Another Methodist preacher, the Rev. Solomon McKinney, has been ordered out of Texas, for the offence of speaking against Slavery. A public meeting of the citizens of Dallas adopted a series of resolutions, denouncing the Methodist Church North in general, and Mr. McKinney in particular, and warning the preacher to depart.

The notorious Hiram P. Leslie, so well known recently as the swindler of a number of young ladies belonging in Philadelphia, was yesterday tried in that city, for the larceny of the clothing of one of his victims, and sentenced to three years' hard labor in the penitentiary.

Comptroller Haws, yesterday, sent a communication to the Croton Aqueduct Department, setting forth his views with regard to the illegality of the contract for extending Beekman-street across the Park. We have already indicated what his views on this subject are. He holds that if the resolution of the Common Council in this regard is carried out it will amount to a sequestration of a portion of the public domain, in violation of the ordinance of 1844, which pledged the proceeds of the sale of the public lands to the redemption of the City Debt.

The Editor of the Daily News, Mr. George F. Thompson, was violently assaulted yesterday afternoon, in the publication office of that paper, by a man named Francis McCabe. The assailant took offence at an editorial which was printed in the News of yesterday, that went to show that the responsibility of the disorderly proceedings at the recent Democratic State Convention at Syracuse, rested upon that portion of the Democratic party with which McCabe is identified. He was arrested, taken before Alderman Brady, and held in the sum of $500 bail, to answer a charge of assault and battery, preferred by Mr. Thompson.

The managers of the American Institute have postponed the opening of their annual exhibition until Tuesday next. Goods will be received for entry until Friday. Everything is yet in confusion at Palace Garden.

A fire broke out last night at No. 49 Ann-street, in the paper warehouse of Messrs. Liebenroth & Vonauw, and communicated to the next building, No. 51, occupied by R. W. Roby, card manufacturer. The damage done will amount to about $30,000.

The examination of the rioters of the Bergen tunnel was concluded yesterday, thirty-three of the prisoners being discharged for the want of positive testimony implicating them in overt acts, and thirty-nine being detained. Order has now been restored, and no further acts of violence are apprehended.

The case of Wm. Mower, the colored barber, of Hudson City, who was tarred and feathered by a number of residents of that city in the latter part of July, 1856, came on in the Supreme Court, Circuit, yesterday, Judge Potter presiding. The plaintiff sues a number of persons, and lays his damages at $20,000. The tarring and feathering is said to have been resorted to in consequence of a belief that the barber had been guilty of decoying away from her father's house, and ruining, an insane daughter of Mr. Elting, one of the defendants. The plaintiff denies having ever seen the girl in question, and introduces evidence to prove his good character. The case is still on.

In the Supreme Court, Circuit, yesterday, Judge Potter decided that giving a note jointly, in payment of a note, is sufficient evidence of copartnership to enable the parties to sue upon it.

The steamer John Farron, belonging to the assignees of Thursby Brothers, was burned at the dock, Greenpoint, early yesterday morning. About one-half of the boat was destroyed, when she broke in two and sunk. The engine will be saved, in a damaged condition. She was said to be fully insured.

Cotton was partially neglected yesterday, sales having been confined to 500 bales, at former rates. A brisk business was transacted in Flour, which, however, was cheaper. Wheat and Corn were less plenty, and were firmer; the demand was fair. Provisions were generally in good request. Pork advanced a shade. Sugars were more sought after. Coffee, Teas, Rice, Molasses and Tobacco were quiet. The movements in other branches of business were not remarkably important.

How We are Governed.

The Constitution of the United States, which has endured a good many commentaries in its day, received yesterday, in this city, a most luminous exposition from one of the leading members of the Democratic Party.

Our readers can hardly have forgotten that at the recent Democratic Convention at Syracuse a certain degree of discord unfortunately prevailed in the place of that mutual tenderness, forbearance and good will which the brethren of one household might naturally enough have been expected to manifest. So far did matters go, that a venerable gentleman, nominated as Chairman of the Convention, was seconded by a blow on the head which laid him senseless on the floor, and from the effects of which he is reported to be still suffering severely. This lamentable occurrence gave rise to a variety of private discussions within the Democratic ranks. The question of "Who struck William Patterson?" did not engender longer or more serious debates than threaten to spring from the striking of Mr. Stryker at Syracuse. The leading journals of the political party interested, have been analyzing the whole affair with laudable skill and energy, and, in so doing, they have dealt pretty freely with names and people. Among others, the Daily News, of this City, a paper understood to be devoted to the interest of the Hard-Wood fraction of the Democratic unit, has been busy with these lively and refreshing pictures of American political life. Yesterday morning this journal contained an editorial article, designed to show, for the satisfaction of those whom it might concern, that the striking of Mr. Stryker, with all the other violences, actual or suggested, which checkered the else smooth surface of the Syracusan meeting of the waters, must be attributed, not to the section of the Hard-Woods, but to the solid, legitimate Democratic authority of Tammany. Of course, it was to have been expected that this should be so. Whatever the truth may have been, it was reasonable enough, when one looked at the story from the political point of view, to anticipate that both the Hard friends of Mr. Wood and the Softer lieges of Tammany, would do their best to reject from themselves the imputation of hiring assassins and desperadoes for the avowed purpose of bludgeoning and beating their fellow-Democrats into sympathy with themselves and support of their plans.

But some of the distinguished individuals who had traveled to Syracuse, partly "on their muscle" and partly on the good will of one or another powerful leader, did not, it seems, appreciate the object held in sight by the Daily News. One McCabe, over whose baptismal name (to call it his Christian name would be an act of practical blasphemy) some uncertainty hangs, but who belonged to this goodly company, was especially dissatisfied with the discussion of his connection with the public interests of the State. This person is apparently a member of the regular service of the Democracy; and by way of vindicating his chieftains from even the suspicion of being privy to anything like a brutal interference with personal rights or political principle, he yesterday afternoon entered the office of the Daily News, and demanded to know who it was that had ventured to criticise himself and his friends. The said friends, or a delegation of them, stood at the time about the door o the office, doubtless armed to the teeth and prepared to support their leader in the execution of his murderous intentions The editor of the Daily News happening to be in the publication office of the journal, answered McCabe's question in a manner which implied a possibility that he might himself have written the article alluded to. Before another word could be spoken, and before the unarmed editor could have so much as suspected the purpose of his cowardly assailant, the Democratic champion fell with sudden fury upon him, and availing himself of that strength and skill in the fistic art, which have endeared him to his superiors, left his victim in a few moments bleeding, senseless and dangerously wounded, upon the floor, to make his own escape, accompanied by his friend, into the congenial arms of a City Father, who, of course, admitted him at once to bail in the trifling sum of five hundred dollars. Such a proceeding as this, in any other country claiming a place among civilized nations, could have but one issue. The ruffian who should attempt such an outrage in London or Paris, would be studying Antarctic astronomy in Norfolk Islands, or playing duets on a pair of galley-chains in the Bagne at Brest or Toulon, before a twelvemonth was past. But such is the happy organization of our society, and such is the beautiful expansibility of our legal system, under the protecting ægis of the American Constitution, that the heroic McCabe is quite as likely to be rewarded by his party for his zeal as to be punished by the authorities for his indiscretion.

If, indeed, the Democracy should think themselves likely to suffer at the polls for this act of their representative, Mr. McCabe may find himself suddenly made a scapegoat for the sins of a system. And if at some not very distant day, the indignant decency of New-York should take the law into its own hands, and, exerting the enormous power which sleeps unused in its grasp, sweep the corners and the caucuses with a besom of fire, then also Mr. McCabe and the hundreds of others like him who riot in insolence and outrage simply because the better classes of the community forbear to hang and scourge them into order, may find things less agreeable than they have hitherto been in the Model City of the Model Republic.

For the present, however, we must be content to let this story go forth, with so many others, as a living and scornful commentary upon our perpetual boastings over the success of our Democratic experiment, and our pratings about the "freedom" of a great people, who abjectly submit to be governed by the lowest and most worthless of their number.

A Hopeless Task.

When the great commercial panic occurred two years ago, the Press teemed with nostrums and panaceas for the prevention of a recurrence of the calamity. Some said that it was too much credit that did it; others, that it was too many bank notes; others, that it was the wrongheadedness of the bank presidents; and others, again, that it was the too lavish importation of foreign goods, or, rather, of foreign luxuries. We were assured that the American people were spending more money upon silks, satins, wines and jewelry, than they could afford, and that the result was periodical bankruptcy. But there was one thing that all were agreed on,—namely, that the crisis of 1857 would be a lesson to every man, woman and child, above the age of twelve years, in the United States. All had undergone such a severe experience of the bad effects of high living that they would never be guilty of it again. Our neighbor, the Tribune, was jubilant over what it considered the verification of its forebodings, and confident that many of the commercial follies it deplored would be committed no more.

We are sorry to find, however, that the American public is at its old tricks again. "It strikes us," says our cotemporary, "that the people of this country are all wagering with each other to see how great an amount of foreign iron, cloth, silk and finery they can import and use up without breaking." It adds that the same thing occurred in 1818, in 1824, in 1837, and last of all in 1857, and always with the same result. After every one of these periods of repletion, and luxury, and extravagance, comes the inevitable crash. The Tribune declares that, after every fit of protective legislation, however trifling, which helped to place foreign manufactures out of the reach of the ordinary run of mortals, and compelled them to clothe themselves and furnish their houses with the plainer and coarser products of native industry, the general prosperity increased as if by magic,—farmers, manufacturers and all, reveled in sound credits, ready markets and easy payments.

All this may be just as our cotemporary states it to be. We do not wish to dispute any of his facts; but we must say, that upon his own showing, we fear preaching retrenchment and protection for home labor is a somewhat bootless task. There is a certain point at which the warnings of the wisest men cease to do any good, and at which a foolish and stiff-necked generation must be left to its own courses. We confess that we, from past experience, despair of seeing any immediate change in the modes of spending their money chosen by that portion of mankind who have got any money to spend. It may be that some years of a protective or prohibitory tariff would enable domestic manufacturers to supply their fabrics just as cheaply as those of Manchester or Paris; but in the meantime there is a vast crowd of people every year who want all these things as cheaply as they can get them, and want them immediately, and won't wait for their countrymen to get ready to supply them. That this is the fact, is shown in the undeniable reluctance of all parties of late years to modify the tariff on the basis of protection. The tendency, be it wise or foolish, of the times, is to raise the revenue with as little trouble as possible, and leave the farmers and manufacturers to take care of themselves. All attempts to get the comparative merits of Free-trade and Protection discussed in Congress of late years have proved lamentable failures. The other questions with which they have to compete for public attention, are too momentous to give these topics a chance of a fair hearing. It may be a pity that this should be the case, but that it is so, there is no denying. Mr. Buchanan, and many of his successors for years to come, would no doubt be delighted to set the great parties of the State by the ears on the subject of the tariff, to save themselves from the horrible tumult of a more embittered and more exciting controversy; but the great parties won't be set by the ears in any such way.

On this matter, too, the politicians and the public are one. That the public take precisely this view of it and no other, is proved, if the Tribune's facts and figures be correct, by the indomitable perseverance they display in ruining themselves by the use of foreign fabrics. They no sooner break down under the influx of the British and French goods they send for, than they set to work to order more. What are you to do with such a people? "They will be drowned," as the Irishman said, "and nobody shall save them." If, knowing by their own experience and the experience of their fathers before them, that the use of foreign fabrics and luxuries brings on individual as well as national insolvency, they will persist in buying them, we for our parts wash our hands of them and their affairs. We can say with great truth that nothing would please us better than to see every man, woman and child in the United States clothed in the products of Massachusetts looms, walking in boots made at Lynn, and eating their dinner with the aid of Pennsylvania iron. We wish no woman in America would ever buy tulle or moire antique when her husband cannot afford them—and that she would religiously eschew lace and diamonds under like circumstances, and that nobody would buy or build a brown-stone front house unless he was able to pay for it in cash, without abstracting one cent of capital from his business. We wish, in short, that all men were brave and honest, and all women virtuous and economical. If expressing our wish would make them so, we would express it every day in large capitals; but the experience of philosophers in all ages warns us not to expend our ink and paper in any such enterprise. When people have got money to spare, or think they have or will have, they will too often, particularly in a rising country like our own, spend a great deal of it in luxuries of all kinds. This taste for luxurious living is not confined to us. It is a characteristic of the age in all countries—the sure concomitant of great commercial success, of large and lavish production.

We do not look for much aid from legislation in repressing this tendency. The legislators, happily or unhappily, represent a still larger number of purchasers of silks and laces than of struggling manufacturers, and are not, at present at least, likely to raise the prices in the "finery" market on the wives and daughters of their constituents.

This alone, independently of all considerations grounded on political expediency, puts a damper on our hopes in that direction. Nor do we expect anything from the self-denying patriotism of individuals. In great crises, such as a war of independence, whole communities (our own amongst the number,) have been known to abjure the use of divers articles of food and raiment, in order to damage the commerce of their enemies. But in these piping times of peace no such lofty examples of self-restraint are to be looked for. Nobody who has plenty of money in his pocket will deny himself his Havana cigar or his glass of claret, in order to expend the sum they would cost in Virginia tobacco or Ohio catawba. Nobody who sees a nice-looking piece of French cashmere at his tailor's will cast it sublimely aside, and call for woolen goods of Massachusetts weaving. Nor will anybody refuse the wife of his bosom a darling bit of lace, in the interest of the Pennsylvania ironmongers. There is no use in looking for these sacrifices or demanding them. Every man knows his own business best, or thinks he does, and will, whether we like it or not, spend his money in his own way, be it wise or foolish.

The only real practical remedy that we know of is in the hands of the foreigners who supply us with these ruinous gewgaws and finery. If we "diddle" them every ten or fifteen years, as the Tribune elegantly says, run enormously in their debt and never pay them, why in the name of wonder do they not stop giving us credit? How does it happen that "American orders" are not the laughing-stock instead of the coveted prizes of Manchester and Lyons manufacturers? Hairbrained spendthrifts, we all know, can manage to get honest tradesmen to trust them for a while, but the day comes when nobody will send his goods to their houses. If we are as bad as we are represented to be, we ought to have reached this point long ago.

Gen. Scott's Mission.

Gen. Scott took his departure yesterday for the Pacific Coast. It is understood that he has been sent thither by the President to settle the dispute which has arisen between Great Britain and the United States as to the ownership of the Island of San Juan.

We confess our utter inability to see the necessity or the propriety of this extraordinary mission. It is scarcely possible that Gen. Scott has been ordered thither in his military capacity, for no emergency has arisen which can render the presence of the Commander-in-Chief of the Army in the least degree necessary,—still less to require him to make a journey of four or five thousand miles at this season of the year and at his advanced age. Gen. Harney has taken possession of the Island, but nothing is easier than for the War Department to order him either to retain it, or abandon it, until the question of title can be settled. Of a collision between British and American troops, there can be no danger; or if danger should arise it will have passed or exploded long before Gen. Scott can reach the ground. The object of his mission cannot be military. He has unquestionably been sent to decide the controversy,—and to assign possession of the Island either to Great Britain or the United States.

The question naturally arises whether he is to pronounce that decision under instructions, or whether the whole matter is submitted to his own discretion. If he acts under instructions a less dignified messenger would have answered the purpose quite as well. If he is left to consult his own judgment, and to decide the question upon his own construction of the treaty, on which the whole decision must rest, why was he selected for that special purpose? If a decision in favor of the United States is anticipated, would the Administration have left a political opponent to reap the credit of it? Is the President so rich in popularity that he can afford thus to throw away chances of brilliant distinction,—or is he of so magnanimous a nature as to stand aside when reputation and popularity are to be achieved?

We should be very unwilling to do the President injustice in this matter, or to suspect him of trying to use for his own partisan and personal purposes the name and the character of so eminent a soldier and patriot as Gen. Scott. But the movement is of so extraordinary a nature as naturally to beget suspicion in the public mind. It looks very much as if the Administration had already decided that the island is to be surrendered; and as if they preferred to throw upon Gen. Scott the responsibility of such a retreat, rather than assume it themselves. We trust the result will not confirm the justice of our surmise.

Registrars and Inspectors.

The new Registry Law requires the Supervisors of this City to assemble on the third Monday of September, and proceed to ballot for three inspectors of each election district in the county. Promptly the Supervisors met at 11 o'clock on Monday, and balloted once for the inspectors of the first district. There being a tie, further action was postponed until Tuesday, the 27th. This was according to a programme that had been agreed on. On Saturday last the Councilmen adopted an ordinance which had already passed the Board of Aldermen, and which was soon after signed by Mayor Tiemann, for re-districting the City. This action raises the number of election districts from 173 to 203.

It has been agreed, we understand, to mete out the appointment of inspectors by the following plan: The Democrats in the Board of Supervisors to have the appointment of two Democratic inspectors in all the districts clearly Democratic, and the Republicans of two Republican inspectors in the districts clearly Republican. The third inspector in each district is to be appointed by the Supervisors of the party in the minority there. The Supervisors evidently imagined that they had conformed to the letter of the law by beginning their work on Monday, and if they proceed promptly to finish it at their next session, there might be no cause for complaint. The inspectors are not required to do anything until Tuesday, three weeks preceding the general election. But it would evidently contribute to the purity of the ballot-box to have their names known in time for their fitness for the position to be well canvassed before they meet as a Board of Registration. Any unnecessary delay will certainly be construed into a desire to foist into the important office of Registrar men whose character will not bear overhauling. The Supervisors owe it to their fellow-citizens to work as rapidly as possible. Let us see the names of the men who are to register the voters, and act as guardians of the ballot-box in November.

If the Registry law is to do any good it can only be from its stringent and honest execution. If the Registrars are unprincipled partisans, as too many of our Inspectors have been, they will register thousands of names whose owners have no just claim to vote, and will render swindling at the polls considerably easier and safer than it was before. If, on the other hand, they perform their duty with rigor and fidelity, they can, at least, check the fraud and villainy by which the people of this City have been so regularly and effectually cheated of their rights. We hope the Supervisors will act upon this matter as citizens and as patriots, rather than partisans. It may be important that one party or the other should make our laws and fill our offices: but it is certainly much more important that we should put an end to the disgraceful frauds upon the ballot-box, which have done so much to bring Republican institutions into disrepute.

The Law of Comptroller Haws.

Comptroller Haws has at last given his reasons for refusing his presence at the opening of the bids for the contract for extending Beekman-street across the Park. He sent, yesterday, to the President of the Croton Aqueduct Department, a communication, by which it appears that he bases his factious interference with the progress of a much-needed public improvement upon three several grounds: First—"The proceeds of the sale of the public lands are pledged to the redemption of the City debt." Second—The Comptroller is, by law, the custodian of the City's real estate, and charged to prevent all encroachments thereon. The only method left him to prevent the sequestration of the Park property was to refuse his presence at the opening of bids for what he deemed illegal contracts. Third—The property proposed to be taken is worth at least $400,000. Private parties would be benefited by opening the street, and hence the parties benefited should be assessed for the expense by Commissioners appointed by the Supreme Court.

It is new doctrine that because the proceeds of the sale of the public lands are pledged to the redemption of the City debt, the City cannot use its public lands for public purposes. Nobody has proposed to sell any portion of the Park, but simply to convert it from one public use to another. That opening the street through the Park would preclude the Corporation from regaining possession of it for any other purposes without the aid of the State Legislature is very true; but there is nothing in the portion of the ordinance of 1844 which the Comptroller quotes, to prohibit a sequestration of the public domain for public purposes. The proceeds of its sale alone are pledged.

This first ground of the Comptroller's action sliding from under his feet, his next position is equally untenable. He is the custodian of the City's real estate; but is he for that reason at liberty to prohibit the City's use of it for its own purposes? What municipal ordinance or Legislative enactment has created him dictator of the ways in which the City may use its own real estate? And what is the difference whether the land to be converted from a lounging place for blacklegs and night-walkers into a public street, is worth four hundred thousand or four million dollars? If the Park is mortgaged to the City's creditors, no action of the Common Council or of the Croton Aqueduct Department is going to prejudice their claim. We take it that, even if the Comptroller had vouchsafed his presence at the opening of the bids, the Courts would not have been abolished, nor all law and equity extinguished.

Mr. Haws has permitted an overweening anxiety to figure as a specially vigilant guardian of the City's interest to overbear his judgment and common sense. Even if the grounds he assumes were tenable, he has resorted to an utterly illegal and unjustifiable mode of action. He has no right to refuse the performance of a plainly enjoined duty, even for the sake of giving effect to his own opinions. His course is factious, and if generally imitated would render Government impossible.

Bespeaking a Puff.

We received the other day the following delectable little communication from a publishing house established in a neighboring city, which we shall not further specify than by saying that it is more prolific of prose than of peaches; and that its female inhabitants are more famed for the solidity of their understandings than for the taste of their toilettes.

"September 17, 1859.

Gents: We sent you yesterday, by bookseller, a copy of our new book. We wish you would speak of the elegant appearance of the book, as well as of its high literary merit, in your editorials.

We shall advertise it extensively, and any help we receive in above-mentioned way will be duly appreciated. Yours truly."

Now there is no particular novelty in the request so calmly advanced in this pleasing piece of composition; but the utter naiveté and unconsciousness, the brief, frank, business-like, matter-of-course style with which the writer prefers his mild petition for a puff, is really a little original, and moves us to make his note the text of a very short sermon on a very long subject.

Time was when the procuring of a puff was a solemn and serious matter, involving great expenditure of time and thought, much circumlocution and a vast deal of delicate diplomacy. All the arts of insinuation and suggestion were then called into his service by the would-be puffee, as against his victim, the intended puffer. But this is all changed now. Tradesmen of all kinds, inventors, speculators, publishers possessed with the demon of competition, assume the puff editorial to be as natural a consequence of the advertisement negotiable, as Careme declared the fish at dinner to be of the soup. The distinction between a chapman's crying of his wares, and an editorial opinion presumed by those who read it to be the unbought verdict of an independent critic, seems to these good people to be quite immaterial. The worthy book-maker, who wishes us to speak of the "elegant appearance" and the "high literary merit" of his new book, without so much as asking whether we think the appearance of said book "elegant," or consider it to possess an atom of "literary merit" at all, is but a type of a great and growing class. It is for the protection of the public against the enthusiastic enterprise of such as these that the criticism of the Press is instituted, and it is quite worth while that the Press in its own behalf as well as in behalf of those whom its verdicts influence for good or for evil, (far more seriously than those who utter them do, we fear, always bear in mind,) should from time to time take occasion to air this salutary fact, constantly imperiled, as it is, by the wiles of advertisements and the apathy of journalism.

A Murder avenged at Last.—The pardon granted three years ago, by Gov. Clark, to Dr. Graham, that dangerous man has already converted into a death penalty. In a political quarrel, touching the origin and nature of which the telegraph is silent, the murderer of Loring has been shot dead in the streets of New-Orleans. There is no need of supernatural argument to prove that the shedder of blood shall sooner or later be overtaken by a violent fate. Juries may acquit, or may mitigate the charge; Judges may contract the sentence to the narrowest limits of the law; and Governors may arbitrarily reverse the course of justice; but there is always the hot and rebellious temper of such reckless men to ensure them ultimately the fate they have for the moment avoided. It is the fury that impels them relentlessly upon their doom. Indeed, the very impunity of their first offense beckons them to further scenes of violence, and to hazard and probable death. Dr. Graham's unhappy end will attract little regret or sympathy.

Academy of Music.

To-night, Verdi's opera of the "Trovatore," will be played for the first time this season. Madame Corzesi sustains the rôle of the heroine, and will therefore appeal to the public in a new part. In other respects the opera is cast with the strength that has ever been bestowed upon it at the Academy—a strength which insured for it a success unparalleled in musical history.

Disease of the Isabella.

A failure of the grape-crop annoys our citizens almost as much as a general potato rot would, for the reason that almost all householders train a vine in their rear yard upon which, in the various employments of pruning the sticks, trimming the side shoots, crushing the caterpillars and fumigating the insects that infest it, they spend a great many happy hours of the growing season, and hang about their vine rich clusters of homely pleasure. The vine pays for itself though there should be never an edible atom of fruit forthcoming. When the purple clusters do ripen fair and plump, silver would scarcely outweigh their value in the eyes of those who have watched the growth of every leaf, the twining of each tendril and shading of each grape. The vines of New-York and Brooklyn generally escaped the frosts of June, which in many parts of the State and of Michigan, Ohio and the Northwest cut off all prospects of a crop. But there is no denying that the Isabella, which for its hardiness has long been a favorite in these parts, is diseased. Some young vines, in well-sheltered corners, have even this year produced handsomely, but, as a general thing, the lower leaves have turned brown, and are falling prematurely, leaving the clusters to ripen unevenly, or not at all. Close pruning, upon which this effect was charged by many last year, is not the cause; for those which have been allowed to run riot in luxuriance of foliage present no more promising appearance than those which were most unsparingly trimmed back. At the last meeting of the Farmers' Club the subject was talked over, and in strains that made the owners of a house, lot and grapevine feel decidedly melancholy. But they who sit under their own vine, better still rejoice in its shades, and by no means be tempted to root out their Isabellas for the present. No one pretends to say whether the disease may not be a temporary ailment, from which it will recover in another year. At the worst, a tolerable crop can be raised with care, and no other species of vine promises to do enough better to justify its hasty adoption, in place of our tried favorite.

An Unequal Race.—A few weeks since, Mr. N. P. Willis, in the Home Journal, gave a very graphic narrative of an alleged incident in the early life in the personal history of Lieut. Maury. The amount of it was that a young Owhyee princess insisted on his marrying her, which he finally did, with the usual ceremonies of the country. The story was told with spirit, and without the slightest hint that there could be any question as to its truth. It has since been pronounced utterly without foundation, on the authority of Lieut. Maury himself;—but this makes not the slightest difference. It is still going the rounds of the Press, as a curious incident of personal history, and without any notice whatever of the contradiction. In spite of himself, Lieut. Maury will go down to posterity as the husband of an Owyhee princess. It is only another illustration of the impossibility of overtaking and correcting a falsehood.

Lectures on Botany.—A course of lectures on Botany is in progress of delivery on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, at 2½ P. M., at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, by Dr. J. G. Cooper, known in connection with the Patent-Office Reports and a volume of the Pacific Mail Report. He was one of the naturalists of Gov. Stevens' Northern Exploration. The present course on Botany is auxiliary to the study of medicine, but is also specially adapted to the arts. All interested in the sale or manufacture of plants in any shape will find something in Dr. Cooper's lectures of benefit, while the course includes a general view of the scheme and science of Botany, with diagrams and specimens.

What Does the Registry Law Mean?

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

Is there anything in the new Registry Law of this State that requires a citizen who has not changed his residence since the last election, and who voted at that election, to go before the Board of Registry and have his name entered upon the list to enable him to vote at the next election? I have examined the act with some attention and I can find no requirement of the kind.

The act provides that the Board of Registry shall enter upon their lists, alphabetically arranged according to their surnames, the names of all persons residing in their election districts whose names appear on the poll list kept in said district at the last preceding general election; and for this purpose the said Inspectors are authorized to take from the office in which they are filed the poll lists made and filed by the Inspectors of the last general election. The law further provides, that on the Tuesday preceding the day of election these lists shall be exhibited at the places for holding the polls on the day of the election, for correction and revision, and here persons who have changed their residence can appear and have the corrections made, and persons who are for the first time entitled to vote can have their names entered upon the lists. These lists, when thus corrected, are to be placed in the hands of the Inspectors, to enable them on the day of the election to receive the votes of all persons found upon them; and any person finding that his name is not on said list on the day of election, may make an affidavit, giving his reasons for not having the list corrected by the insertion of his name, and his affidavit supported by the oath of a householder of the district. He can then vote.

This is about all there is in the law. I find nothing in it requiring nine-tenths of the electors,—those who voted at the last election and have not removed from the election districts in which they voted,—to go near the Board of Registry, because their names will be upon the prepared lists taken from the last poll-lists, and being thus upon the lists they can vote. If I am correct, is there anything in the law worthy of the name of a "Registry Law?" The title of this Act is "An Act for ascertaining by proper proof the citizens who shall be entitled to the right of suffrage and to prevent fraudulent voting;" but on examining the Act I think it falls far short of anything contemplated by the title. HOMER.

PERSONAL.

The Christian Advocate and Journal reports the movements of the American Methodist missionaries in India. The Rev. James Baume arrived at Calcutta, July 15, in good health. The Rev. Dr. Butler has fixed his residence at Bareilly. Mr. Parsons had just issued a tract in Hindostanee, entitled, The Witness of the Holy Spirit—the first effort to publish Methodist literature in that tongue.

The Opera troupe engaged by Mr. Boudonsquié for the Winter season in New-Orleans, comprises M. Eclarat, tenor, M. Petit, Mad. Marechal, and others of whom many fine things are said. Eighteen members of the company have already sailed from Havre for New-Orleans direct, and six others are to arrive at this port by the Ocean Queen, in October.

The three rivals for the billiard championship—Phelan, Seereiter and Tieman—are carrying on a brisk newspaper controversy. Seereiter writes from Chicago, under date of Sept. 15, that he is anxious to play any man in the world for the sum of $5,000 a side. Phelan positively declines to meet Seereiter again.

Charles Astor Bristed, son of the late Rev. John Bristed, has presented to the town of Bristol, R. I., where his father long resided, $500, the income to be given to the poor. Appropriate resolutions have been passed by the Town Council, accepting the gift and thanking the donor.

The Kansas Troubles.—The Lawrence Republican states that Capt. Montgomery has concluded not to venture to an appeal to arms unless new arrests are made by parties from over the line. The Fort Scott Democrat gives the proceedings of "a meeting of the citizens of Franklin, Bourbon County, to consult upon the best plan to establish permanent peace and friendship between the citizens of Kansas Territory and the citizens of the State of Missouri." It was resolved to call a general meeting of the citizens of Bourbon County on the 18th day of September.

The New-York Yacht Club—Fall Regatta for 1859.

The Fall Regatta of the New-York Yacht Club will come off on Thursday morning, the 22d of September, at 10½ o'clock, under the direction of the Regatta Committee. There will be a prize valued at $30 for each class of yachts. The courses for the sailing are as follows: The yachts will be started when under way and in classes, from abreast of Buoy No. 20, off Owl's Head, L. I. At the time of starting a preparatory gun will be discharged from the yacht Favorita; soon after, a second gun will be discharged, when the yachts of the 3d class will pass to the eastward of this buoy. At the discharge of the third gun, the 2d class and 1st class sloops will start; and at the discharge of the fourth gun, the 2d and 1st class schooners will follow. The intervals between the discharges of the gun will be five minutes, and any yacht not passing the buoy within ten minutes after the time of starting of her class, will be ruled not to have started. The yachts will pass around the buoy of the Southwest Spit, turning it from the north and west, thence around the Light-ship, turning it from the south and west. Returning, they will pass the buoy of the Southwest Spit, turning it from the south and east; thence to buoy No. 15, on the West bank, off Staten Island shore, passing it from the southward and westward. In going, all the buoys on the West bank, viz., Nos. 11, 13 and 15, are to be passed to the eastward, and in returning, buoys Nos. 11 and 13 will be passed to the eastward.

The attention of members is called to the following rules:

Yachts allowed to carry men as follows: First class, one to every four tons of her measurement. Second class, one to every three and a half tons. Third class, one to every three tons. Every yacht under fifty tons shall carry, during a regatta, a serviceable boat, not less than ten feet in length; and yachts over fifty tons shall carry one not less than twelve feet in length. Entries will be received until Sept. 20, 11 o'clock A. M., at the office of the Secretary of the Club, No. 5 Pine-street. All yachts will wear their owner's signal at their peak.

N. B.—The Southwest Spit bears from the centre of the Narrows due south—distance from Robin's Reef Light, 10¾ miles.

Herring's Patent Champion Safes Again Victorious.—Read the following letter from E. W. Blatchford, Esq., proprietor of the Chicago Lead Pipe, Shee and Bar Lead Manufactory:

CHICAGO, Sept. 16, 1859.

C. L. Harmon & Co., No. 135 South Water-st., Chicago, Agents Herring's Patent Champion Safe:

GENTLEMEN: During the disastrous conflagration of last night, my Lead Pipe, Sheet and Bar Lead Manufactory, five stories in height, and 55 by 100 feet on the ground, was completely destroyed, and the walls nearly all fell. The Herring's Patent Champion Safe, size No. 2, high folding doors, which Collins & Blatchford bought of you some three years since, was in my office on the second floor of the manufactory, and fell some 20 feet into the basement, where it laid exposed to a very severe heat for ten hours. Upon recovering it from the ruins to-day, and opening it, I found all my books, papers and money contained in it in a good state of preservation—the only damage to them being the drawing of the leather binding of the books, and their being quite damp from the safe's being filled with steam from the fire-proof filling. The fire was of the most intense character, owing to the great height of the building, and the fact that each story was in flames at once. I regard it as a most satisfactory test of the perfect fire-proof security afforded by Herring's Patent Champion Safe.

Yours truly, E. W. BLATCHFORD.

STILL LATER.

FIRE AT NEWARK, N. J.

From the Newark Daily Advertiser of Friday Evening, Sept. 16, 1859.

This morning a Herring's Safe, which had been in the third story and in the ruins all night, and in the hottest part of the flames, was taken out, and on opening it, its contents (the books of Messrs. Ward & Johnson) were found to be entirely preserved.

NEWARK, Sept. 19, 1859.

MESSRS. S. C. HERRING & Co.—Gents: We take pleasure in stating that our books, papers and money were preserved uninjured in one of your Patent Champion Safes at the burning of our moulding mill on the 15th inst., after being exposed to the fire for several hours.

POPULAR ESSAY ON THE
DISEASES INCIDENT
TO
TRADES AND OCCUPATIONS.

It is our purpose to write, as briefly as possible, concerning the disorders and diseases incident to certain occupations, including their causes, symptoms and mode of cure. We shall do this in plain language, and in a straightforward way. Our purpose is two-fold—firstly, to give some curious facts not generally known; and, secondly, to bring more forcibly to view the ready relief at hand in RADWAY'S REMEDIES. We frankly avow that the trouble we are taking is a business transaction, meant to benefit both the public and ourselves.

The diseases springing from various trades arise either from the very nature of the occupations, from the materials handled or used, or from both these causes. Scarcely any of these pursuits are necessarily unhealthy, but men will be as imprudent in their business as in their pleasure, and suffer for their neglect of precaution.

Let us first look at those who suffer from poisonous materials.

COPPERSMITHS, BRASS-FOUNDERS, BRAZIERS AND PINMAKERS,

from their manipulation of copper and its compounds, take into their system either the impalpable dust of its oxides or salts, or their fumes. The result is a copper disease, whose symptoms may vary more or less in violence, sometimes creeping slowly along until the system is utterly destroyed, or else opening an avenue to more apparent diseases. The victim to the copper disease notices, perhaps, on rising in the morning a slightly acrid taste in the mouth, a slight constriction of the throat, the tongue dry and parched, and, sometimes, sickness at the stomach. He thinks he has caught cold, and, probably, takes some advertised expectorant, which leaves him worse than before. At times there comes an attack of colic. If dysentery is at all epidemic, he is very liable to be attacked, and his tormina and tenesmus, as the doctors call them, namely, his pain in the bowels and disposition to stool, are exceedingly violent. Often a thirst which he cannot account for, or a distended abdomen, or black stools, slightly streaked with blood, or an undefinable anxiety, is the commencing symptom, and is scarcely noticed. Cramps sometimes make their appearance in the limbs and stomach, either alone or accompanied by some of the symptoms previously enumerated. A headache at the close of work, or during the day, is quite common. A preventive of these would be the use of a respirator, which checks the passage to the lungs or stomach of the dust or vapor, and gloves, to keep it from the pores of the skin. A generous diet should be used, the bowels kept open by moderate doses of RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS; a dose should be taken in the morning and evening of RADWAY'S READY RELIEF, and the use of RADWAY'S RENOVATING RESOLVENT persevered in, until the system is rid of the poison.

TYPE-FOUNDERS, PEWTERERS, PAINTERS, PLUMBERS AND GLAZIERS, AND WORKERS IN LEAD MANUFACTORIES OR SHOT TOWERS, are exposed to the lead disease. This, like the copper disease, may produce a series of insidious but scarcely noticed symptoms, ending sometimes in paralysis, or, more especially with painters and white-lead makers, in what is generally called painter's colic. These all, at times, will notice in their mouth, more particularly at rising, a sugary and slightly astringent taste, constriction of the windpipe, pain and uneasiness in the region of the stomach, and occasionally nausea, followed sometimes by vomiting.

COACH PAINTERS,

or those who use much vermillion, will have a tendency to diarrhœa, for, unlike copper, this shows its effects more in the small intestines; and the bladder and urinary passages will be seriously affected, sometimes merely producing painful urination, and at others, bloody or high colored urine. The REGULATING PILL and the RESOLVENT must be mainly relied on, and the parties should never go to work on an empty stomach. For the more painful symptoms the READY RELIEF will be necessary, and will by no means belie its name. It should be used internally and externally. In painter's colic, the REGULATING PILLS should be used to produce a free evacuation, and afterwards more moderately, to keep up regular action; and from the very start, the READY RELIEF given in full doses, in flax-seed or slippery-elm tea, or gum-water. The diet should be light, chiefly beef-tea, (not beef soup) or chicken broth, from which the fat has been skimmed. In paralysis, the persistent use of the REGULATING PILLS, with the READY RELIEF, well and steadily rubbed into the affected limb or part for at least fifteen minutes, three times per day, and a generous, but digestible diet, will effect a cure. In all external application the palm of the hand is the best thing to rub with, and a female hand, from its softness, should be preferred.

DYERS AND CALICO PRINTERS

are liable to several severe symptoms. Those who use muriate of tin sometimes perceive its effects in their systems. They observe an austere taste in their mouth, which is apt to turn into a well defined metallic one, together with nausea, especially after rising from a meal. Their pulse is more small and hard, and beats more frequently than natural. One very common symptom is a frequency of stools, not diarrhœa, for during some months this may be unattended by pain, and the consistency of the evacuations be normal. Twitching of the face and extremities is less common, but a more dangerous symptom, for unless promptly met, it may be followed by paralysis of the parts attacked. The treatment in this is the same as in the copper disease, viz: RADWAY'S READY RELIEF, REGULATING PILLS and RESOLVENT.

are sometimes affected in a manner similar to dyers, but in a less degree. Their attacks are rare. If peculiarly susceptible they may take the lead poison from the solder, but we never knew but one case of that kind. The acrid fumes of charcoal, in this and similar trades, sometimes produce inflammation of the bladder, which may be effectually combated by the RELIEF and REGULATING PILLS.

PAPER-STAINERS AND TAXIDERMISTS

occasionally suffer some most distressing symptoms—the former from the showy greens they use, and the latter from their constant handling of arsenic or the corrosive chloride or mercury. A fœtid breath is not uncommon, with a rather austere taste at times, considerable increase of saliva, or constriction of the lower part of the throat, which seems to extend into the breast, frequent hiccough, sometimes a fainting sensation, which comes and goes very suddenly, very black and offensive stools, or high-colored urine. These are some of the symptoms which may occur separately or together. It is a curious fact that some people engaged at these occupations grow quite plump, and apparently enjoy the best of health, having especially a fresh and clear complexion. If, however, they go into any other employment, or refrain from work for some weeks, they are very apt to be visited with many or all of the above symptoms. In either case the RESOLVENT should be used, along with the REGULATING PILLS, the relief being resorted to in order to remove immediate pain or distress.

ELECTROTYPERS, GLASS-STAINERS AND CARD-ENAMELERS, MANUFACTURERS OF CHEMICALS, GOLD AND SILVER PLATERS AND REFINERS, are liable to many of the above symptoms. Electrotypers are especially liable to derangement of the bladder.

PRINTERS AND TYPE-FOUNDERS, from their constant handling of type-metal, contract the effects of antimony. This is shown by the temporary paralysis of the fingers and hands, copious stools, cold night-sweats, loss of strength, tenderness of stomach, bowels and throat. Sometimes though drinking nothing but water, they feel a confused, semi-intoxicated sensation in the head. The treatment here is gentle purging with RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS, aided with the READY RELIEF as a drink; when the disease has become chronic the RENOVATING RESOLVENT must be used as an adjuvant to the RELIEF and PILLS.

MASONS AND BRICKLAYER'S ASSISTANTS, AND MORE ESPECIALLY LIMEBURNERS AND WHITEWASHERS, are constantly liable to vomiting, pains in limbs or temporary palsy, which latter sometimes becomes permanent. A milk-diet, mucilaginous drinks, and the use of the READY RELIEF will remove most of these symptoms, the RESOLVENT being also necessary where palsy supervenes. Sometimes cos. tiveness follows, demanding the use of the REGULATING PILLS. The particles of lime in the eyes are very apt to produce conjunctivis, which will yield to an eye-wash, made of sassafras pith and water, into which the READY RELIEF is put, in the proportion of six drops to every two table-spoonfuls, increased gradually to ten drops. A dose or two of the REGULATING PILLS will materially assist in subduing the inflammation.

POWDER-MAKERS

are subject to heart-throbbing and heart-disease, with looseness of bowels; and both these and

are liable to a very troublesome skin-disease, developing itself on the scalp, and sometimes in little patches, on the back of the thumbs or fore-fingers, or at the lower extremity of the spine, attended with itching, and scaling off of the cuticle. In the former cases the REGULATING PILLS will be found sufficient, conjoined with the READY RELIEF; iff the latter the RESOLVENT internally, with the RELIEF applied externally, diluted at first, but gradually increased to its full extent. The REGULATING PILLS may be advantageously used, if indicated by the state of the stomach and bowels.

The effect of alkaline contact is sometimes shown on in colic, convulsions and diarrhœa. The READY RELIEF, and oranges or any ripe fruit slightly acid will be found to be a pleasant as well as a valuable adjuvant. Buttermilk answers a good purpose in these cases.

BLEACHERS AND OTHERS, EXPOSED TO CHLORINE OR OTHER FUMES OF ACIDS, are apt to be attacked by pains in throat, stomach or bowels, excessive thirst and tenderness of abdomen. If the exposure is long continued at one time, there comes an acid taste in the mouth which leaves after the free air is inhaled; but this only occurs from sheer neglect. The symptoms named first give way to the READY RELIEF. The addition of a slight dose of calcined magnesia will aid the action of the medicine slightly; but it is not absolutely necessary. The RELIEF will do its work well without it. The makers of loco-foco matches are sometimes troubled with the above symptoms, caused by the phosphorus which enters into the composition of the tips. A chronic inflammation of the glottis and tonsils is sometimes the result of this—coming on very insidiously, and if not checked extending to the windpipe and even to the branching air-tubes of the lungs, called by the doctors, the bronchiæ. When this commences it may be soon checked by a gargle made up of equal proportions of the READY RELIEF and water.

We will next examine the cases of those who are affected by disease from irritating substances applied to the lungs and air-passages mechanically, with which, indeed, some of those mentioned previously might be classed.

CARPET AND OTHER WEAVERS, CHARCOAL-DEALERS, BOILER-MAKERS, WHITESMITHS, LOCKSMITHS, MACHINISTS, FURRIERS AND FUR DEALERS, GLASS-CUTTERS AND DRILLERS, MATTRASS-MAKERS, TEA-PACKERS, CUTLERS, FILE-MAKERS, LAPIDARIES, SCULPTORS, STONE-CUTTERS, SLATERS, CARPET-BEATERS, GRINDERS AND POLISHERS, STREET-SWEEPERS, AND WOOL-PULLERS—are subject particularly to bronchial affections and consumption, arising from the floating particles of irritating matter, disengaged during the process in which they are engaged, and entering the air-passages. In all such cases RADWAY'S READY RELIEF, applied externally over the throat and chest, and the RENOVATING RESOLVENT, taken internally, will speedily effect a cure, and remove all traces of incipient consumption.

were formerly included in the same position, but the advent of silk hats has greatly diminished this tendency. A respirator is very necessary as a preventive, and, indeed, as an aid to cure. A silk handkerchief loosely tied over the mouth and nostrils, when directly exposed, is as good as anything. A generous diet, vigorous, out-door exercise, and the use of the READY RELIEF and RESOLVENT will soon restore the system to health.

FARMERS, OSTLERS, GROOMS, AND ALL WHO HANDLE HAY, are liable to the distressing, though rarely fatal, complaint, asthma. The fumes of shellac produce the same disease, and hence hatters, and especially those who make sealing-wax, are subject to it. Asthmatic people are proverbially long-lived, yet the complaint is by no means agreeable. The READY RELIEF will mitigate or remove the paroxysms of the disease, and the RENOVATING RESOLVENT, taken according to directions, will effect a cure.

BAKERS,

from the action of the acid of fermentation on the skin of their hands, and the almost constant exclusion of air from the pores by the flour, are subject to a troublesome itch. For this the RENOVATING RESOLVENT is a sure remedy, but the RELIEF, diluted and applied as a wash, will aid in effecting the desired end sooner.

Occupations wherein sudden mental emotions, or protracted mental labor forms a part, are not only productive of brain disease, but of a gradual ramolissement or softening of the substance of the brain, whose approach may be told by neuralgia, either just below the eye, or above the eyebrow. Asthma and costiveness, the latter the parent of piles, fistula and similar troublesome complaints, are often the result. Hence it is that are affected so much with neuralgia and costiveness. The treatment in these cases is RADWAY'S READY RELIEF—internally and externally—the pain immediately ceases after its application. RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS will, in a few hours, restore regularity to the bowels and liver. In certain cases of NEURALGIA, and other nervous affections, the RESOLVENT is requisite.

Exposure to heat characterizes some occupations, thus, are liable to asthma, costiveness, rheumatism and inflammation of the spleen and liver. Enlargement of the liver is very common among all persons exposed to intense heat. Hence it is that liver complaints are so common in tropical climates. It need scarcely be said that the liver is a controlling organ, and that its derangement involves all the connecting viscera. The derangement of this viscus may be combated successfully by the proper use of the RELIEF and REGULATING PILLS, which in the spleen disease also act with speedy good effect. For rheumatism, if acute, the READY RELIEF aplied both externally and internally is generally found sufficient, though chronic cases, or such as may be combined with a scrofulous habit, will not yield without the RENOVATING RESOLVENT, which utterly roots out the disease, and restores the system to its normal state.

IRON-FOUNDERS, FURNACE-TENDERS, COOKS, AND KITCHEN MAIDS

STEVEDORES, LONGSHOREMEN, PORTERS, QUARRYMEN, AND ALL PERSONS WHO LIFT GREAT WEIGHTS, are exposed to attacks of pleurisy. The RELIEF will break the violence of this, and with the REGULATING PILLS effect a cure.

BOATMEN, DECK HANDS, DITCHERS, DOCK-BUILDERS, SEAFARING MEN, RAFTSMEN, PHYSICIANS, STAGE-DRIVERS, TRUCKMEN, and all exposed to sudden changes of weather, are liable to liver complaint and rheumatic affections, but more especially to spleen disease.

SEAMEN,

through long abstinence from vegetable diet, are subject to SCURVY. The use of RADWAY'S REGULATING PILLS and RENOVATING RESOLVENT is a sure antidote for this distemper. In all cases of SHIP-FEVER, SMALL-POX, CHOLERA OR YELLOW FEVER, RADWAY'S READY RELIEF and REGULATING PILLS are positive preventives, if taken before the attacks, and certain curatives if used after.

STAGE DRIVERS

are liable to suffer from diabetes, for which the REGULATING PILLS and RESOLVENT should be used.

PHYSICIANS,

who are frequently much exposed, should never be without the READY RELIEF, especially in visiting patients sick with contagious diseases. The head, hands and face thoroughly washed with it, and a full dose of it taken internally just previous to the visit, will effectually prevent contagion. The power of the RELIEF in the matter of contagious diseases is really wonderful. It is a sure preventive to SMALL-POX, and in a well-known disease among cattle, known as BLACK-TONGUE, depending, no doubt, upon some contagious virus, yields so readily to this remedy, that through the South and West, look upon it as a sovereign and infallible remedy in all such cases. Hence, too,

DROVERS AND CATTLE-DEALERS,

BOATMEN, PLANTERS, OR FARMERS RESIDING IN LOW OR OCCASIONALLY OVERFLOWED GROUNDS, will find the RELIEF a protection against FEVER and AGUE and other malarious diseases.

PRINTERS AND MINERS, the former from their standing so long at the case, and the latter from their cramped position in the mines, aided no doubt by the dampness, have more or less troublesome affections of the joints occasionally. These will always yield to the RELIEF AND REGULATING PILLS, unless suffered to run too long, when the RESOLVENT may be required.

BUTCHERS

occasionally have life or limb endangered by a scratch or cut from a knife which has been used in dressing or opening an animal too long killed. Swelling of the part, itching and enlargement of the neighboring glands (kernels) follow. The wound should be washed, and a bread poultice, (not bread and milk,) moistened with some drops of READY RELIEF, employed. The swelling should be bathed with the RELIEF, and the REGULATING PILLS used until the violence of the symptoms has abated. It may as well be mentioned here, that the making of a really good poultice is little understood. Stale bread should be rubbed into a fine crumb, and placed in a soup-plate or large saucer, over which water, while boiling, must be poured. A similar plate or saucer is now to be placed over this, the two grasped firmly and held up sideways, so that the water will drain out. The wet crumb is now to be rubbed into a pasty consistence with a spoon, placed on a rag at once, and applied to the part as warm as the patient will bear. As soon as it begins to harden around the edges a fresh one should be substituted, and thus a continual fermentation be kept up. That is the true poultice, which may be medicated by the RELIEF, or otherwise, if required.

BASKET-MAKERS, BOOT AND SHOE MAKERS, AND TAILORS, from their sedentary habits, are subject to piles, anemia, tympanites, costiveness, hypochondria, diabetes, St. Vitus' dance, dropsy of chest, general debility, and, if the habit of the body tend that way, to apoplexy, or if not to consumption and lung disease. The treatment of these under our system is summary and effectual. For hypochondria, the READY RELIEF and PILLS; for dropsy and St. Vitus' dance, the REGULATING PILLS and RESOLVENT; and for anemia, all three of the remedies. The treatment of the other affections have been already indicated.

The complaints of females engaged at various occupations are somewhat different from males, in consequence of their peculiarity of organization. It is true that those who lead a sedentary life, or are occupied in pursuits which require them

MRS. WILLIAMES will reopen her School on Wednesday, Sept. 14.

An omnibus will be provided for pupils residing at a distance.

THE SPINGLER INSTITUTE,
UNION-SQUARE AND FIFTH-AV., CORNER 34TH-ST., MURRAY HILL.

This institution, commenced in 1843, has occupied successively locations in Colonnade-row, Lafayette-place, Washington-square, and University-place.

The present spacious edifice on Union-square was erected for it twelve years since, and with its various appointments—Library, Philosophical and Astronomical Apparatus, Laboratory, and Works of Art, involved an investment of not less than Eighty Thousand Dollars.

In addition to the above, to meet the increasing wants of the Institution, the celebrated mansion and grounds (six lots,) on the Fifth-av., corner of 34th-st., Murray-Hill, have new been purchased with special reference to the accommodation of the higher classes—candidates for graduation, and young ladies wishing to pursue an advanced course in general reading, History, Literature, Modern Languages, Music and Art.

At Union-square, special attention will be given to the other classes of the Collegiate, the Academic, and the Primary Departments, preparatory to their promotion. For the convenience, however, of those residing near either location, the same provision will be made at each for pupils of every grade and class.

The privileges and course of instruction will be almost identical, under the same supervision, and to a great extent conducted by the same teachers; so that parallel classes will be only sections of the same, and the Seniors at commencement will graduate together. Interesting Lectures and exercises, at either place, will sometimes be shared by the members of both sections of the classes for whom they are intended.

The autumn session at Union-square will commence on Wednesday, Sept. 14; at Murray Hill, on Wednesday, Sept. 21.

The expenses at Murray Hill will necessarily be somewhat greater than at Union-square.

Applications for circulars, or for admission, may be made personally, at either place, or by letter, addressed

Advanced students of the Classical Department are just entering on the study of the authors required for admission to the Freshmen and Sophomore classes of College, under the tuition of Prof. JOHN MCFARLANE, who has, during more than twenty years of devotion to Latin and Greek classics, prepared many New-York students for Columbia and other Colleges, among whom is Mr. Orlando H. Morris, of this City, for the Freshman Class of Columbia College; Mr. Bernard Pratte, son of the late Mayor of St. Louis, for the Freshman Class of Yale College; and Mr. Cornelius King, son of the President of Columbia College, for the Junior Class of that Institution.

The advanced classes in French have been placed under the instruction of Prof. DE GROS, who is eminent for imparting a correct conversational use of the language.

The central location of this Institute renders it easy of access by railroad and stage from all parts of the City, Brooklyn, Jersey City and Hoboken, while pupils to it from Yonkers, Irvington, New-Rochelle and Jamaica, L. I., are of constant occurrence. Circulars of full particulars may be had at the Broadway Bookstores, Burnton's, No. 49 6th-av., Rayner's, No. 76 Bowery, and at the School.

The smallest boys are under the special care of one of the Principals.

For the information of parents seeking a suitable place in this City for the instruction of their sons, and who are not acquainted with this Institution, a part of the names of its 175 well-known present patrons are given as APPROPRIATE REFERENCES, viz.:

PUBLIC SALE OF THE
COVINGTON AND LEXINGTON RAILROAD.

JAMES WINSLOW, Trustee, &c., Plaintiff in Equity vs. The Covington and Lexington Railroad Company et al., Defendants.

Under and by virtue of the judgment of the Fayette Circuit Court in this cause, at its present term, and as Commissioner of said Court, I shall proceed on WEDNESDAY, the 5th day of October next, at the Court-House door in the City of Lexington, to sell to the highest and best bidder all the

RIGHTS AND FRANCHISES
OF THE
COVINGTON AND LEXINGTON
RAILROAD COMPANY,

Embraced in the mortgage of the plaintiff, including the RAILROAD of said Company and all its REAL ESTATE, DEPOTS and STATION-HOUSES, the LOCOMOTIVES, CARS and MACHINERY, and the FUEL and MATERIALS of every description on hand and in the possession of said Company; and also, all the rights of said Company as lessees of the road between Paris and Lexington from the Maysville and Lexington Railroad Company, and all their rights as lessees from the Lexington and Danville Railroad Association, of the road from Lexington to Nicholasville.

The sale will be upon the following terms, to wit:

First—The purchaser will be required to pay the principal and interest of the four hundred bonds of $1,000 each, issued under and secured by the first mortgage of said Company at the times and place when the same shall become due. These bonds with the mortgage under which they were issued will continue until fully paid off, to constitute a first lien on the property.

Second—The purchaser will be required (if his bid embraces the same) to pay the principal and interest of the one thousand bonds of $1,000 each, issued under the second mortgage of said Company, as follows, to wit: The principal on the 1st of March, 1863, and the interest at the rate of seven per cent. semi-annually, on the 1st of March and September in each year, at the Bank of America, New-York City. Also, the sum of $35,000, with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the 1st of September, 1858; and $35,000, with like interest, from the 1st of March, 1859; and $35,000, with like interest from the 1st of September, 1859, until the day of sale, together with the plaintiff's costs in this suit. For the last mentioned sums, with interest at the like rate from the day of sale, the purchaser will be required to execute bonds with good securities, payable in equal instalments, at six, twelve and eighteen months from the day of sale, and having the effect of judgments.

To secure the payment of the principal and interest of the second mortgage bonds, a lien will be reserved upon the property, and in addition the purchaser will be required to deliver to the Commissioner securities of the cash value of $100,000, which may consist of bonds of the State of Kentucky or Ohio, at par, or bonds of the United States, or any other State in the Union which sell in the City of New-York at or over par; or first or second mortgage bonds of the Covington and Lexington Railroad Company, or mortgages upon unincumbered real estate in Kentucky or Hamilton County, Ohio, (the purchaser defraying the expense of investigating the title to and ascertaining the value of such property.) The Commissioner is authorized to receive other securities than those named, (if of undoubted permanent value,) subject to the approval of the Court. The income accruing upon the securities thus deposited will be for the benefit of the purchaser until default made by him.

The purchaser will be further required to invest annually sixty thousand dollars of the revenues of the property in safe and productive securities as the Court may direct. Of this sum thirty thousand dollars shall constitute a sinking fund to pay the principal of the 1st and 2d Mortgage Bonds, and thirty thousand dollars shall go to create a contingent and renewal fund; but any sums expended by the purchaser in the improvement and renewal of the road (over and above the ordinary current repair) will be deducted from the appropriation to the contingent and renewal fund for that year.

Third—If his bid embraces the same, the purchaser shall execute his bonds with good security, having the effect of judgments, and payable in equal instalments at six, twelve and eighteen months from the day of sale, with interest upon each at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the day of sale, for the payment of the interest in arrear on the third mortgage bonds, (except those held by Bowler, Robbins, and S. J. & J. W. Walker at the institution of this suit,) with like interest on each instalment of the same, from the time they severally became due until the day of sale. He will also be required to pay the principal of said bonds and the interest accruing on the same after the sale, at the times and place where they shall become due. As a security for the payment of the said principal and interest, the purchaser must deliver to the undersigned securities to the cash value of $100,000, and of the same character as those required for the security of the second mortgage bonds, and in addition to those named, third mortgage bonds of this class may be received.

Fourth—If his bid embraces the same the purchaser will be required to execute bonds with good security, and having the force of judgments, for the payment in three equal installments, at six, twelve and eighteen months, with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the day of sale, of the following sums, to wit: $180,500, with like interest, from the 1st of July, 1859, till the day of sale; the sum of $9,025, with like interests, from the 1st of May, 1858, till the same day; the sum of $9,025, with like interest, from the 1st of November, 1858, till the same day; the sum of $9,025, with like interest, from the 1st day of May, 1859, till the same day; and the sum of $3,509, with like interest, from the 10th of July, 1859, until the same day.

Fifth—If his bid embraces the same, the purchaser will be required to execute bonds, with good security, payable in six, twelve and eighteen months from the day of sale, bearing interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the day of sale, and having the force of judgments, for the payment of all the interest in arrear on the third mortgage bonds, held by Bowler, Robbins and S. J. & J. W. Walker, at the institution of this suit, together with interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum from the time of the several installments thereof fell due until the day of sale. And he shall also be bound to pay the principal and interest of said third mortgage bonds as the times and place where they are payable, and as security therefor he shall deposit with the Commissioner securities of the cash value of $100,000, of the character and upon the conditions prescribed for the other third mortgage bonds. The two classes of third mortgage bonds referred to in this and the third specification embrace in the aggregate 600 bonds of $1,000 each.

Sixth—For the remaining purchase money (if any) the purchaser will be required to execute his bonds, with good security, having the force of judgments, and payable in equal installments, at six, twelve and eighteen months, from the day of sale, with interest at the rate of six per cent. from said time.

The Commissioner will deliver to the purchaser a certificate of purchase, and will require from him the immediate deposit of securities of the cash value of $20,000 as security, that the terms of the sale will be complied with by him within twenty days. If the deposit is not made, the bidder will be reported to the Court for a contempt, and the sale will proceed as though his bid had not been made. If, after making the deposit, the successful bidder shall fail to comply with the terms of the sale within the prescribed period, the property will be again sold, and the deposit will be retained to meet the loss and damage arising from his non-compliance. So soon as the purchaser has received his certificate of purchase, the possession of the property will be delivered to him, to be retained by him until the sale is confirmed or quashed by the Court. If confirmed, the possession will be continued in him; but if quashed, he will be required to surrender the possession to a Receiver of the Court, and to account for and pay over the earnings of the property while in his possession. After which the securities deposited by him will be returned.

The Court reserves the power by summary proceedings against the purchaser, to enforce compliance with the terms of sale, and until full payment is made, to coerce the purchaser to keep the property in good repair, and in case of default on his part to appoint a receiver to take the property in possession, or to order a resale. And to secure a full and complete compliance with the terms, a lien will be retained upon all the property, rights and franchises, and the income arising therefrom, to which no security of the purchaser will be surrogated until after all the terms are fully complied with.

For two days next preceding the sale, there will be exhibited at the Clerk's office of the Fayette Circuit Court, in Lexington, an inventory of the property to be sold. And the undersigned will himself attend to exhibit the same, and give information concerning the property and the Company's title thereto, and interest therein.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

AN EDITOR ASSAULTED IN HIS OWN OFFICE.—About 1¼ o'clock yesterday afternoon, FRANCIS MCCABE, a well-known Ward politician, and keeper of a public house in Broadway, corner of Twelfth-street, went into the business office of the Daily News, and entered into conversation with Mr. W. DRAKE PARSONS, the proprietor of that paper. After a short amicable discussion of the business prospects of the concern, MCCABE inquired the name of the author of a leading article in that journal of yesterday, entitled "Who took the Bullies to Syracuse?" and which was calculated to fix the responsibility of the act upon the Tammany Hall Democracy, of which organization MCCABE is an adherent. Mr. PARSONS, not anticipating MCCABE's violent intention, referred the latter to Mr. GEORGE F. THOMPSON, the editor, who happened at that moment to enter the publication office. MCCABE repeated his question. Mr. THOMPSON responded by inquiring what was the matter with the articles alluded to. MCCABE wanted to know who wrote articles of that character. The editor answered that he sometimes wrote them. Scarcely had these words been uttered when MCCABE gave Mr. THOMPSON a sudden back-handed blow in the face which partially floored him. As he was in the act of rising after the slap, MCCABE caught his opponent by the coat collar, and struck him a second blow in the face with his clenched hand, which had the effect of breaking Mr. THOMPSON'S nose. During the time of the assault a number of MCCABE'S friends, who are said to be connected with the Street Department, waited at the door that they might render any needed assistance to the assailant. MCCABE, after the fracas was over, went off with these attendants. Mr. THOMPSON immediately went before Ald. BRADY and entered a complaint against his assailant for assault and battery. A warrant was issued and placed in the hands of Officer HOUGHTON, of the Second Precinct, who soon arrested the accused, who was held to bail in $500 to answer the charge. The bail was speedily furnished. It is said that MCCABE and his friends, after the matter had been taken to court, made earnest efforts to compass a settlement, but Mr. THOMPSON insists on bringing the case to a trial.

COMMUTE OR SHOULDER ARMS.—Most citizens of New-York have probably ere this been apprised, in due form, of the fact that the annual parade of the "First Division New-York State Militia" will come off on the 14th of October next, at which time every male citizen of sound constitution, between the ages of 18 and 45, who has not previously laid his six shillings on the altar of Mars, will be required to present himself, duly armed and equipped, in his proper district, to undergo review and take a drink at the nearest corner-grocery. The season for commutation commenced a week ago to-day, and continues till the day of parade. The amount received in commutation fees last year at the Tax-Receiver's office was $8,000. Year before last it was over $10,000. This year there has been received thus far only $248, and as one week out of the four during which the payments are made has already passed, the indications are that the receipts this year will be lower than ever. One cause of the decline is said to be an impression, which prevails extensively, that the statute requiring the payment of commutation fees is illegal, and may be disregarded with impunity. It is certain that the law has not heretofore been very signally enforced against delinquents, and it is probably from this fact that the impression has been derived; but we are assured, on the best legal and military authority, that there is no defect in the law, and that every person who neglects to commute, or to appear at the annual parade, is liable to a fine of $3. The only question on which there has ever been any doubt, is in relation to the application of the law to unnaturalized citizens; and on this point the Supreme Court has decided, that every male resident of the required age, is prima facie liable to military duty, and that the excuse of non-citizenship must be made to the military Court of Appeals, within the time specified in the notice, and will not avail as a defence after the imposition of the fine. The amount collected in commutation fees, after paying expenses of collection, is divided equally between the different regiments in this Division, and is applied to the musical expenses of the regiment. The Seventh Regiment received last year $500, and as it costs each member of that regiment from one to three hundred dollars annually out of his own pocket, it is argued that private citizens, for whose gratification they so often parade, should not begrudge the small sum of 75 cents towards paying for the music.

BURNING OF THE STEAMBOAT JOHN FARRON.—The steamboat John Farron, which has been lying up for some two months past on the south side of Newtown Creek, at Greenpoint, was, about 4 o'clock yesterday morning, discovered to be on fire. The alarm having been given, the firemen of the Eastern District hurried to the spot, but the fire, which mysteriously originated below, had already burnt through the upper deck, and extended to the after-part of the boat, threatening her total destruction. The flames were not entirely extinguished until near 7 o'clock, when it was found that the entire after-part of the vessel was destroyed, that portion forward of the wheels, and including the engine, being little damaged. The hull, however, afterwards broke in two, and sank at the dock. The owners of the boat were Messrs. THURSBY BROTHERS, rope manufacturers, who suspended some time since, this steamer having been a costly speculation, and, it is supposed, contributing to their embarrassments. The boat was in charge of their assignee. The John Farron was built about three years ago, and was intended for a passenger boat on the Sound, but some peculiarities in her machinery, which were intended to demonstrate new principles in the mode of steam propulsion, did not work well, and rendered her unserviceable. The cost of the experiments, with the boat, are put down at over $50,000. She was insured in New-York, Hartford and Providence.

THE CITY RAILROADS AND STREET-CLEANING.—Several weeks have elapsed since an ordinance was introduced in the Board of Aldermen, requiring the different City railroad companies to sweep their tracks and a portion of the pavement on either side of them, twice a week, and prescribing a penalty of $100 for every failure on their part to comply therewith. By their charters, the companies are required to keep a certain portion of the streets and avenues in which their tracks are laid down, swept and in repair, but generally they have neglected to comply with the first provision, and the City has been compelled to perform the duty at its own expense. There is certainly no reason why these wealthy corporations, whose income from their valuable franchises is enormous, should fail to comply with their charters in this respect, and the ordinance in question, which has been laid over three times, should be passed without delay. The City Inspector especially desires that immediate action should be taken in this matter, so that in making his contract for cleaning the streets with sweeping-machines, he may have a clear understanding with regard to the part which the railroad companies are to perform. If it is made imperative to them to keep the tracks and the adjacent pavements clean, probably they will join with the City Inspector in employing the sweeping-machines.

VIOLENT DEATHS FROM VARIOUS CAUSES.—CATHARINE MILLER, a German woman, 24 years old, residing in Fifty-third-street, near Tenth-avenue, took arsenic and died, Monday evening. Coroner JACKMAN'S Jury found that she was far advanced in pregnancy, and unable to conceal her condition, committed suicide. CATHARINE BUTLER, aged 68 years, fell from the piazza of the second story of No. 67 Catharine-street, Monday evening, and fractured her skull. She died at the Hospital soon after. The Coroner's Jury censured the owner of the building because the piazza was in such an unsafe condition. JAS. MCCABE, a hod-carrier, fell to the sidewalk from the new building corner of Fifth-street and First-avenue, and was killed instantly. His body is at the Seventeenth Ward Station-house. EDWARD FOLLAS, aged 20 years, who fell through the second story hatchway of HENRY C. DOWLEY'S store, No. 20 Cortlandt-street, died early yesterday morning. Verdict —"Accidental death." One HARRISON was almost instantly killed, yesterday morning, by falling from the roof of No. 56 Gouverneur-street to the sidewalk.

NORTH ATLANTIC STEAMSHIP COMPANY.—The departure of the Star of the West, yesterday, for Aspinwall, with the mails and California passengers, completes the arrangement heretofore existing between the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and the United States Mail Steamship Company—M. O. ROBERTS' line; and the whole business programme of the respective Companies will now be changed. The steamers hereafter to be employed in carrying the California passengers from this port, by the regular or mail line, will be the Baltic, Atlantic and Adriatic, which will depart from the foot of Canal-street, the old pier of the late Collins line, and not from the foot of Warren-street, as heretofore. The ticket-office of the Company has also been changed from No. 177 West-street to the Canal-street dock, which is the only place where passengers can now procure their tickets for these steamers. The new arrangements of the Company are set forth in their advertisement of to-day.

THE FAIR OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE.—At Palace Garden, everything is yet in a state of confusion. Last year the Institute had to contend with fire, this year water, which has expended, and is still expending, its energies in the vain endeavor to crush the hopes of the Managers and thwart their endeavors. The rain of Friday and Saturday put back preparations about a week, and yesterday's drizzle was most inopportune. Through the week designated for the reception of goods articles have continually been coming in, but with them have come numerous requests for a postponement of the opening day. As will be seen by advertisement, these requests have been complied with. Until Saturday goods will be received, and on Tuesday next the Fair will be opened to the public. Every one postpones entering their articles until the last day which is designated, and yesterday the clerks at the Garden were kept very busy. The Managers anticipate a successful exhibition, if the weather should prove favorable.

GOV. BRUENINGHAUSEN WELCOMED HOME.—A large number of the friends of Almshouse-Gov. CHAS. BRUENINGHAUSEN assembled at his residence, No. 95 Second-avenue, last evening, to congratulate him on his safe return from Europe, where he has been spending several months. A numerous delegation from the German Singing Societies was present, with a fine band of music, which performed several national airs exceedingly well. At their conclusion the Governor came forward and was greeted with loud and enthusiastic cheering. Capt. J. W. HARTT, on behalf of a committee appointed for the purpose, presented a series of resolutions, welcoming the Governor home and commending his private character and his conduct as a public officer. The resolutions, which Capt. HARTT accompanied with a brief speech, were adopted unanimously; and Gov. BRUENINGHAUSEN responded appropriately. Other speeches were made, other music executed by the band, and the assemblage at a late hour dispersed.

A CHAPTER OF CASUALTIES.—The Police report the following casualties to have occurred within the last 36 hours: CATHARINE MULLALY, of No. 80 Elm-street, in attempting to fill a lighted camphene lamp was seriously burned by its explosion. She was taken to the City Hospital.... A man named CHAS. MCGOVERN, fell from car No. 32 on the Second-avenue Railroad, at the corner of Chrystie and Grand streets. The wheel passed over his right arm and hand, cutting off the thumb and first finger.... Mrs. AGNES and child were run over and slightly injured in Broadway by a horse and wagon. They were conveyed home .... DENNIS MURPHY fell from a platform of the screw dock, at pier No. 39 East River, and fractured his ribs. Officer DECOURCEY, of the Seventh Precinct, took the injured man home.

HOMICIDE AT SEA.—Yesterday morning Officer VAN DERYA and the crew of Harbor Police Boat No. 2, boarded the ship Dewitt Clinton, just arrived from Liverpool, and arrested JOHN COWEN, alias POWELL, for stabbing JAMES ANDERSON, a shipmate, on the 15th of August. ANDERSON died on the 18th. The United States Marshal held the prisoner for examination.

Police Reports.

ROBBERY, GRAND LARCENY AND THEFT.—Mrs. McCutchen, of No. 45 Essex-street, appeared before Justice BRENNAN yesterday, and charged Samuel Harrington with coming into her store, in Front-street, and stealing her gold watch, valued at $75. The watch was found upon his person, and he was committed in default of $1,000 bail.... Charles Williams picked the pocket of a gentleman in Philadelphia, a few days ago, and escaped to New-York. He was arrested on a Jersey City Ferry-boat yesterday, and sent back to Philadelphia for trial.... William Reed complained that John Butler and Frank McCarthy had robbed him of a passage-ticket to Philadelphia and several other articles, in all valued at $8 50. The property was recovered, and Justice OSBORN committed the robbers for trial.... Ellen Dorsey, of Leonard-street, charged Catharine Spence, alias Kate Murphy, with having stolen a gold watch from her, valued at $45. The twain had been drinking together, and when Ellen had become somewhat intoxicated, Kate seized and ran off with the timepiece. Kate, when arrested, confessed the crime, and said she had given the watch to one Thomas Cusick, of Church-street. Cusick was arrested, and then released on a promise to return the watch. Kate was committed for trial.

FELONIOUSLY ASSAULTED.—Mr. John McIntire, of No. 212 East Twenty first-street, made a complaint yesterday before Justice QUACKENBUSH against Louis Oppenhoffer, a boarding-house keeper at No. 275 First-avenue, and John Linder, a baker, whom he charged with stabbing him in the head with a knife, and beating him with a club. A woman named Ann Jane Zeiger, of No. 101 East Sixteenth-street, witnessed the affray. She says that as McIntire was passing by Oppenhoffer's place, about 6 o'clock yesterday morning, a remark was made by the former which seemed to greatly enrage Oppenhoffer, who had a knife and smoothing-iron in his hands at the time, and with these he commenced an attack upon McIntire. While thus engaged, Linder came up, and seizing the complainant by the throat, shoved him down the steps of a lager-beer saloon. As McIntyre lay prostrate at the foot of the steps, three or four men went down and pounded him until their victim was well-nigh senseless. Oppenhoffer and Linder were both arrested, and each, in default of $1,000 bail, was committed to answer the charge.

A HIGHWAY ROBBERY BY DAYLIGHT.—Two young men, Mr. G. N. Chamberlain, of No. 201 West Thirty-fifth-street, and Mr. Almond P. McConney, were accosted about 3 o'clock, on Sunday afternoon, as they were passing through Lispenard-street, by two females, with whom they commenced a conversation. While thus engaged two men, named James McDermott and William W. Hagan, approached the group and began an assault upon the young men, on the ground that they were insulting the women—one of whom McDermott alleged to be his wife. Hagan knocked Chamberlain down. McDermott performed a similar action against McConney, and afterwards robbed him of a gold watch, valued at $15. The highwaymen were all arrested yesterday, taken before Alderman BRADY, and committed to answer, each in default of $2,000 bail. Hagan pleaded guilty to a charge of assault and battery, and McDermott admitted that he stole the watch. The papers in the case were immediately sent to the Grand Jury.

The Comptroller and the Extension of Beekman-street.

The Comptroller, yesterday, sent the following communication, assigning his reasons for refusing to attend the opening of bids for the contract for extending Beekman-street across the Park, to the President of the Croton Aqueduct Department:

CITY OF NEW-YORK, DEPARTMENT OF FINANCE, COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE, Sept. 20, 1859.

M. Van Schaick, Esq., President Croton Aqueduct Department:

SIR: I have received your favor of the 13th instant, asking me to assign my reasons for refusing to attend the opening of bids for the contract for extending a street across the City Hall Park from Beekman-street to Park-place. In reply I have to say, this work does not seem to me to have had inception in accordance with law, and in my opinion is in violation of the spirit as well as the letter of the law.

If I am informed aright the only authority for the action of your Board in attempting this improvement is in the following resolution of the Common Council:

Resolved, That the Street Commissioner be and hereby is directed to advertise for proposals for paving with Belgian pavement a curved carriage-way to be of the width of Park-place, and to cross the lower end of the Park from opposite Park-place to Park-row, passing the fountain in the said Park at about ten feet to the north thereof. Approved by the Mayor Jan. 8, 1859.

Above resolution amended by striking out the words "Street Commissioner" and substituting the words "Croton Aqueduct Department" in lieu thereof. Approved by the Mayor, June 20, 1859.

A compliance with this resolution, by grading, paving, opening and permitting the public to pass unmolested, but for a day, upon the proposed street, would be such a dedication as to preclude the Corporation from ever regaining or closing it except it by act of the Legislature, and by remunerating parties who might have acquired rights thereby. This, therefore, would amount to a sequestration of a portion of the public domain, in violation of the ordinance of 1844, which pledged the proceeds of the sales of the public lands to the redemption of the City debt, and therefore in violation of the public faith. (See Subdiv. 3 of § 1, Title 1, of said Ord.)

To prevent the possibility of wrong to the creditors of the Corporation, the Legislature, in the year 1845, at chapter 225, gave this ordinance all the force of a State law, by the following enactment:

SEC. 5. The ordinance now in force, and approved of by the Mayor of said City on the 22d day of February, 1844, and any ordinance that may hereafter be passed by the said Mayor, Aldermen and Commonalty of the City of New-York, in conformity with the provisions of this law, and relative to the Sinking Fund, shall not be amended without the consent of the Legislature first had and obtained, &c.

Another section of the ordinance imposes upon this Department the responsibility of taking charge of the real estate. I quote the clause (Sec. 1, title 4):

"It shall be the duty of the Comptroller to take charge of all the real estate belonging to the Corporation, and to prevent all encroachments thereon."

It thus appears manifest that in the structure of this ordinance it was the intention not only to pledge the real estate to the redemption of the City debt, but to provide by the sovereign Legislature of the State an officer who was to guard this pledge. This Department is therefore charged with a trust in the matter, and will not permit its violation without at least a protest.

The property proposed to be taken is worth at least four hundred thousand dollars. The mode in which it is taken, as I have mentioned, would amount to an alienation of it without compensation, which would be doing indirectly what the City cannot do directly. It cannot alienate by sale its property, real or personal, except at auction, and then to the highest bidder. (Charter, 1857, Sec. 41.) Upon the consummation of sales in this way, the proceeds are carried to the credit of the Sinking Fund. If the proposed street is deemed an improvement the parties benefited should pay some just compensation. This is the principle upon which all improvements of a similar character have hitherto been made, and I see no reason for making this one an exception, more especially while the City is so largely in debt, and the property proposed to be taken has been pledged to its redemption.

There is a method of reaching the proposed end, which would mete equal justice to all; that is, by applying to the Supreme Court for the appointment of Commissioners of estimate and assessment, who should assess upon parties benefited the just expense thereof. I can see no good reason for making the property in the immediate vicinity a beneficiary to so enormous an amount, without some equivalent. If, as I conceive, the measure is in contravention of law, I am absolved by every principle from participating in its consummation. The charter, in requiring my presence at the opening of bids, manifestly contemplates only the legal contracts of the Corporation.

In conclusion, allow me to assure you that my action is not prompted by private views of the necessity or propriety of the work, but by a conception of the duty imposed upon me by an ordinance which in some degree makes this Department the guardian of our plighted public faith.

I, therefore, must respectfully decline to participate in any way in carrying out the resolution under which your Board claims to act.

Very respectfully, your obedient.

ROBT. T. HAWS, Comptroller.

The Croton Board will lay the subject before the Common Council next Thursday evening.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

METHODIST ANTI-SLAVERY CIRCULAR.—Some of the leading Methodists in this city have recently issued a Circular of decided Anti-Slavery character. They "hold fast to the testimony of their fathers against the great evil of Slavery;" believing "that it is the duty of the Church to seek the extirpation of Slavery," and yet they say:

"We hold that the policy of our Church is, and ever has been, to receive into their communion both slaveholders and slaves, whenever they have given evidence of conversion, for the sake of a great and ultimate good, namely, the bringing of slaveholding under the restraints of Christian discipline, and the preparing of the way for emancipation, in a manner consistent with the best interests of both masters and slaves."

This Circular purports to be signed by leading members of the denomination—both laymen and clergymen—representing nearly every society in Brooklyn.

HORSE CARS ON ATLANTIC-STREET.—Horse cars will be placed on the Atlantic-street Railroad this morning, at 10 o'clock. Several days will necessarily elapse before the road is in full working order, but by the first of next week the Company will be ready to accommodate all who wish to ride between the South Ferry and Bedford. New cars, similar to those in use on other roads in the City, but better furnished, lighter, wider, and in every way more comfortable, have been made expressly for this route, and there seems to be a determination on the part of the Company to afford the public every accommodation within their power.

POLITICAL.—The Republican Primary meetings will be held on Monday evening next. The Assembly Conventions are called for the 30th inst.; Senatorial Conventions on the 28th inst., and the County Convention on the 1st day of October. The Democratic Judicial Convention will be held on the 11th of October.

TUESDAY, Sept. 20—P. M.

The Stock Exchange continues active, and the speculation in several of the Railways quite spirited again to-day. The course of prices was somewhat irregular—firm on the first call of the list at the morning Board, but subsequently lower, with a disposition to press sales in the Western shares. Thus Galena and Chicago opened at 77 ₱ cent., and gradually receded until the close of the Second Board, when 75½ ₱ cent. was accepted, and that price afterwards bid, as against 76½@¾ yesterday afternoon. It was intimated at the close that one or two of the large speculative holders who failed to take advantage of the first rise to 77@77½, sold their stock in the course of the day. In sympathy with Galena, the shares of the Rock Island fell off to 69⅜@½, and Michigan Central to 46½ ₱ cent. Between the Boards some cheap offers were made on the Street to sell Michigan Guaranteed, out of which grew a rumor that the rainstorm of Saturday had damaged the track. The sales at the Second Board were at 23½ ₱ cent., with 23 ₱ cent. bid at the close, against 24½@¾ yesterday afternoon. The demand for Illinois Central was an exception to the weakness of the Western list; a large business was done at 68¾@⅜@¾ ₱ cent. in the Shares, and 88¾ ₱ cent. bid for the Construction Bonds. In Reading there was less firmness than yesterday; sales in the afternoon at 44½, and 44¾ subsequently bid. In New-York Central there was another large business, and mostly at stiff prices, notwithstanding the heavy sales and settlements of yesterday. About 5,000 shares were taken at the morning Board at 81½@¾@⅞ ₱ cent, the top rates of Monday, after which, on the Street, the price eased off to 81⅜@½ ₱ cent., and sold at the Second Board 81½ ₱ cent., finally closing, as on yesterday, 81⅜@81½ ₱ cent. In Panama, Pacific Mail, Hudson and Harlem, there was not much done. Pacific a fraction weaker; the others quite steady. State Stocks in fair request, but no improvement in prices. Nearly all the Railway mortgages, except Michigan Southern seconds, were firmer. Erie fourths sold at 40 ₱ cent., and the seconds at 72 ₱ cent. Michigan Central 8 ₱ cents. advanced to 91 ₱ cent., and Galena seconds to 89 ₱ cent. The general market, late in the afternoon, closed somewhat unsettled in tone and irregular in prices, though the sellers for the fall were by no means anxious to press their contracts, having been so frequently disappointed of late in the occasional or partial signs of reaction.

The Foreign Exchanges for the Boston mail closed on a fair demand at or within the rates quoted yesterday. The ease in Money, and the difficulty of placing it at call better than 5@5½ ₱ cent. on good Stock collateral, indisposed some of the leading drawers to move on London better than 110¼ ₱ cent. The actual business ranged 110@110¼, Bank and Bankers' bills, and on Paris f.5.15@f.5.14⅜ at 60 days. There was some short-sight Exchange made on London at 110⅛, and on Paris at f.5.11¼. In the Discount market we have nothing new to report. The Stock Brokers are moderate borrowers at 5@5½ on State and Federal, and 6 ₱ cent. on other collateral. The Customs increased to-day, from the cargoes of the Persia and Kangaroo, to $183,000; other receipts into the Sub-Treasury, $101,000; payments out, $141,000; balance this afternoon, $5,235,987. The Export of Domestic Produce foots up well again this week—$1,544,445, against $1,047,270 same week last season. The Export of Gold and Silver will not go out until the close of the week. The demand is fair in anticipation of the steamers on Saturday for Havre and Liverpool, with only a moderate supply of California bars, of which we shall have further receipts early next week.
